ARCHITECT'S DRAWING of a Ramada Inn to be built by April, 1969, in Sikeston. The site of the inn is at the northwest, quadrant at Interstate 55 and highway 60 at Miner. Initially, about 100 units, a restaurant, and a convention room are included in the plans. The architecture is Colonial Williamsburg. A swimming pool, courtyard and recreation area will be built.

Ramada Inn to Be Built at Miner I-55 - U. S. 60 Intersection

Plans for a Ramada Inn with 100 units to be constructed initially in Sikeston were announced today by Midamerica Hotels Corporation, with Charles L. Drury and Jerry M. Drury, both of Cape Girardeau, as stockholders.

The new motel, restaurant and convention facility will be completed by April of 1969. It will be on the northwest quadrant at Interstate 55 and U.S. 60 in Miner.

The M & M Grain Company site has been purchased along with eight acres from Joel Montgomery for an 11-acre site. The transaction was handled by the R. D. Clayton Realty Co.

Equipment of the M & M Grain will be sold Wednesday. Immediately afterward the building will be removed. Ground clearing is expected to begin Sept. 10, and construction Sept. 20.

Architecturally, Sikeston's new facility will follow a Colonial Williamsburg design prepared by Ramada's engineering and architectural staff.

The inn will be designed for approximately 200 rooms.

One hundred rooms will be built at once with a dining room and coffee shop with seating for 150. A meeting room with seating capacity for 325 will be constructed.

The restaurant will be attached to the main Inn building. Forty-one units are included in the main building, with approximately 60 other units to be attached.

The main building will have a lobby and interior corridors. The balance of the motel, which will be in the attached section, will have exterior entrances.

The Ramada Inn unit will have a playground area and swimming pool in the court yard.

Located adjacent to the Ramada Inn will be a major oil service station. Both are planned to be completed and open for business in April.

The franchise has been granted Midamerica by the Ramada Inn parent company, a nationwide chain of motels of Phoenix.

Ramada Inn is a growing chain concentrating on middle income families and commercial travelers. In six years, the chain has grown from 31 units to 186 of which more than 120 are franchised units.

Plans for developing 225 other units are underway. The inns are in 32 states, Washington, D.C., Mexico and Morocco.

Site work has been completed for the Ramada Inn of Cape Girardeau and construction will start soon. The Cape Girardeau Ramada Inn also will be owned and operated by Midamerica. A May, 1969 opening is planned for the Cape facility.

The M & M Grain Company, which has occupied the Miner site 25 years, will move to a new site one and one half miles north on Route A.

The company will maintain the farm chemical business, the seed business and the fertilizer business, Phil McGill, company president announced. M & M will curtail its grain and farm supply business.

Smoking Report Urges Stepped up Efforts to Combat Cigarette Use

WASHINGTON (AP)—A national task force today recommended stepped-up federal and private efforts to combat use of cigarettes and "stem the rising tide of early deaths and disabilities associated with smoking."

The report was immediately attacked by the Tobacco Institute as a "shockingly intemperate defamation of an industry which has led the way in medical research to seek answers in the cigarette controversy."

Among the recommendations of the task force report to the U.S. Surgeon general:

--Tighter restrictions on cigarette advertising and promotion.

—Better instruction in schools to influence youngsters to refrain from smoking.

—Greater antismoking efforts by doctors and other health professionals.

—Use of group approaches to prevent or reduce smoking.

—More insurance plans which give reduced rates to nonsmokers.

—Development and promotion of safer cigarettes.

The task force, which was appointed in 1967, said it is encouraged with early results of antismoking efforts.

It noted that cigarette consumption per capita declined sharply after the surgeon general's 1964 report on smoking and health, that it rose again in 1965 and 1966 and again is declining.

But the task force said "The problem remains, still, bigger than the efforts to combat it. Cigarette smoking is one of the foremost preventable causes of death in the United States as well as in other parts of the world."

On cigarette advertising the task force said it "is unable to see how, in the long run, a product involving the health hazards of cigarettes can continue to be advertised."

In the meantime, the group said, "higher standards for cigarette advertising should be demanded." It called on the administration to press for legislation to require that tar and nicotine contents be listed on cigarette packages and in advertising. And the task force urged a stronger warning about the health hazards on cigarettes, to be placed in advertising as well as on cigarette packages.

The task force also said such advertising should not be allowed to reach large numbers of children and young people and shouldn't equate smoking with social success or sex appeal.

The group criticized what it called "the inability or unwillingness of the cigarette industry to face up to the health hazards of cigarette smoking or even to admit they exist."

It said 'large parts of the industry" have been trying to discredit the 1964 report and its 1967 followup, concluding that "this well-financed and professionally conducted program, when addressed to the consumer, is encouraging death and disease."

In education, the task force urged the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to support training of teachers and curricula for improving school instruction on hazards of smoking.

Man Arrested With Shotgun

Fred Fraizer, 56, 226 Bowman, was arrested by Sikeston police at 12:43 a.m. today and charged with displaying a dangerous and deadly weapon and public intoxication.

Police were called by Sarah Thompson, 222 Young St., who reported Fraizer had broken into her house. Officer Hiram Gardner Jr. and Sgt. Ruben Templeton reported finding Frazier sitting in the front yard with a 20 gauge shotgun propped against the chair when the arrest was made.

In other activity, an accident occurred at 11:06 a.m. today at 138 North Prairie. Police reported a car driven by Mrs. Linda Peel, 1909 Kentucky, backed into a parked truck owned by Robert H. Lasters, 23, Canalou. No one was injured.

A car driven by Connie Thompson, 230 Ruth St., was involved in an accident at 8:07 a.m. today at Ruth and Delmar streets with an automobile driven by Carl Napier, 31, Sikeston. Police reported Napier's car was traveling south on Delmar and apparently didn't see the Thompson vehicle as she traveled east on Ruth to cross the intersection. The front end of the Napier vehicle struck the rear fender of the Thompson car, police reported.

Ruling Wiretap Did Not Convict Hoffa Upheld

CHICAGO (AP) — A federal appeals court has upheld a lower court finding that electronic eavesdropping by the government did not aid in the 1964 conviction of James R. Hoffa, imprisoned Teamsters union president.

The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals agreed Thursday with a finding by U.S. District Judge Richard B. Austin that "the government obtained no new information from the electronically eavesdropped overhearings." One of the three judges dissented.

Hoffa was sentenced to five years in prison and fined $10,000 in the 1964 conviction for fraud and conspiracy in using $1 million in union pension funds to finance a Sun Valley, Fla., real estate project.

The sentence was vacated by the U.S. Supreme Court, which ordered a hearing to determine whether admitted government wiretapping aided in the conviction.

Austin issued the finding Aug. 22, 1967, against Hoffa after the Teamsters official and five codefendants contended the government had based its 1964 case on a wiretap of the telephone of S. George Burris of New York, one of the co-defendants.

McCarthy Asked If He Favors Demonstation Ban

CHICAGO (AP)—Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy was asked today if he wants to join two rivals in a move to ban floor demonstrations at the Democratic National Convention.

John M. Bailey, Democratic national chairman, sent McCarthy a telegram saying: "In view of the statements by Vice President Humphrey and Sen. McGovern urging no demonstrations for candidates nominated at the Chicago convention, I would like your recommendation on the matter."

The three men are contending for the Democratic presidential nomination at the convention opening Aug. 26 in the International Amphitheatre.

Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota sent Bailey a telegram Wednesday saying: "The sight of grown men and women cavorting around the convention floor is not in keeping with the serious business we are going to Chicago to consider."

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey suggested later that the convention spend "considerably less time on the frills and nonsense."

Whatever the final decision on trimming the show inside the hall, the atmosphere outside will be serious.

A mile-square area around the amphitheatre will be closed to virtually everyone but holders of convention credentials.

A spokesman for Chicago police said Thursday a tight security area will extend from Halsted Street at the eastern edge of the stockyards area to Ashland Avenue on the west, and from 39th Street to 47th Street.

Earlier, the police had planned a restricted zone four blocks long and two blocks wide in the area of the amphitheatre.

Democratic Chairman John M. Bailey was in Chicago Thursday inspecting preparations at the convention hall and said he was pleased.

Bombing Debate May Undercut U.S. Stand

PARIS (AP) — Debate in Washington over Vietnam bombing policy seems to be undercutting the stand taken by the United States in the Paris peace talks against stopping the bombing without Communist de-escalation also.

The apparent contradiction of views has strengthened the impression of some diplomats here that the Washington debate may yet result in a decision to halt all attacks on North Vietnam.

Ambassador W. Averell Harriman and his delegation are trying, meanwhile, to get some indication from Hanoi that the summer lull in the fighting in the South is a Communist sign of de-escalation. Well-informed authorities say that so far they have had absolutely no success.

This failure to produce any word from Hanoi that the lull has a political motive has been registered in private contacts as well as formal sessions of the talks, it was said.

The contrast in arguments advanced by Harriman to Ambassador Xuan Thuy and the views expressed by some Washington policy makers stands out in a comparison of the U.S. position at the peace talks Wednesday and Thursday's news conference by Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford.

Harriman told Thuy that the United States had continued to bomb the southern part of North Vietnam after March 31 in order to reduce the infiltration of troops and supplies into South Vietnam. He based his defense of the bombing primarily on this point.

Clifford said that the North Vietnamese "have moved the men they chose to move" into the South over the last three years, and supplied them in spite of the bombing.

To offset losses due to bombing of the infiltration routes "they just move more men and more supplies," he said.

Recently, President Johnson said in a news conference that the bombing was knocking out 30 per cent of the North Vietnamese trucks going south. Secretary of State Dean Rusk about the same time said the United States would require assurances from Hanoi "directly or indirectly" about what would happen if the United States stops all the bombing.

The impression in Paris now is that the North Vietnamese are waiting to see how the Washington argument comes out, particularly in view of the uncertainties added by the U.S. domestic debate over politics.

Wallace Petitions List 61,839 Names

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Supporters of former Gov. George Wallace of Alabama presented petitions to Secy. of State James C. Kirkpatrick today to get Wallace on the ballot as a presidential candidate in Missouri.

Tom Turnispeed, national coordinator for Wallace, said the petitions contained 61,839 names — far more than the 17,836 which Kirkpatrick said were required.

Wallace fans, including pretty girls dressed in red, white and blue, crowded into Kirkpatrick's office for the brief ceremony.

Turnispeed said if the petitions are accepted and Wallace's name is certified in Missouri, he would be on the ballot in 40 states. Before the campaign is over, he said Wallace would be on the ballot in all 50 states.

Wallace will run in Missouri as the candidate of the American Party. A new party must be formally established under Missouri law before a third party candidate can get on the ballot.

Kirkpatrick said his first job will be to check the validity of the signatures with the help of local election officials wherever voter registration is required.

Kirkpatrick said there is no plan for a test suit. The Missouri Supreme Court ruled several years ago the secretary of state's task is purely ministerial and he is required to accept any such nominating petitions if the signatures are found to be valid.

Army to Close 23 Missile Batteries in 12 States

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon announced today the Army will shut down 23 antibomber missile batteries in 12 states to save money.

The action is the latest in a series of economy measures being taken by the Pentagon to cut fiscal 1969 spending by as much as $3 billion.

The Pentagon said deactivation of the 23 Nike-Hercules firing sites and seven headquarters installations will save $18.8 million in the current budget year, $84 million in succeeding years.

The Pentagon is expected to bear the brunt of a demand for spending reductions totaling $6 billion which the Congress made in return for passing President Johnson's 10 per cent income tax surcharge.

Closing the sites also will drop active Army strength by 4,200 men. Eight of the missile units are operated by the National Guard.

"After careful study, these sites, in 12 states, were found to contribute least to the effectiveness of the defense of the continental United States," the announcement said. "It was originally planned to close some of these sites by the summer of 1970."

The Nike-Hercules is a 39-foot missile capable of shooting down 2,000 mile-an-hour bombers.

The first batteries became operational only 10 years ago, but the entire air-defense system has been undergoing considerable streamlining in recent months.

The announcement said these sites would be closed:

Van Nuys and Newhall, Calif.; Lemont, Ill.; Munster, Ind.; Selfridge Air Force Base, Mich.; Irwin, Pa.; Edgemont, Pa.; Annapolis, Md.; Old Bridge and Hazlet, N.J.; Cromwell, Conn.

Marine, Hecker, and Grafton, Ill.; Pacific, Lawson, and Pleasant Hill, Mo.; Gardner and Ft. Leavenworth, Kan.; Denton, Terrell, Alvarado, and Camp Wolters, Tex.

The seven headquarters to be closed are at Saugus, Calif.; Tappan, N.Y.; Scott AFB, Ill, Pleasant Hill, Mo.; Olathe, Kan., and Duncanville, Tex. The latter has two headquarters installations.

The Pentagon said National Guard units at the air-defense sites in Missouri and Texas will be inactivated.

Technicians at the Missouri and Texas sites will be released and the military personnel will be transferred to other National Guard units.

Two double battery sites are being reduced to single batteries at Warington, Pa., and Ft. Tilden, N.Y.

Affected personnel in Maryland, Connecticut, Pennsylvania and Illinois are being transferred to other National Guard units.

The phase-outs are the second major economy move taken by the Army. Earlier, the Pentagon decided not to activate the 6th Infantry Division at Ft. Campbell, Ky., as originally planned, to save $125 million.

Last week the Navy made its initial financial cuts by ordering 50 ships into mothballs and closing down eight naval air squadrons.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

If a man comes up to you in Great Britain and hands you a balloon, he may be a peddler -- or he may be a cop!

English police cars recently began carrying as standard equipment a supply of balloons attached to little tubes. Inside each baloon are a few yellow crystals and some weak acid. If a bobby suspects that a certain driver has had too many martunies, he can legally ask the motorist to blow up one of his baloons.

So what?

So, nothing, if you haven't been drinking. But if there is sufficient alcohol on your breath, it will turn the crystals green!

If this happens, you will be invited to join the nice policeman for a nice ride to the nice police station, where samples of your blood will be taken to determine to what degree you are intoxicated.

If the alcohol content of your blood is high enough to be in violation of the traffic laws, the judge must take away your license for a year. He may also fine you up to $280 or send you to jail for two months. If you are convicted of driving while intoxicated (DWI) a second time, the judge must jail you.

In this country, as well as in England, a major enforcement problem has arisen around the law prohibiting drunk driving. Tolerances of alcohol vary, and the vast majority of drunk drivers aren't arrested unless they have an accident.

The British balloon test is an effective way for the officer in a squad car to determine whether a person has had too much to drink, causing a safety hazard on the road. However, it can be argued that this is effective only for those drunks who are noticed, and that the punishment may be somewhat harsh.

Be that as it may, the National Safety Council estimates that drinking is a factor in more than half of all auto accidents.

Assuming that the average person does not want to drive when it is dangerous for him to do so, what's needed is a method by which he can determine his own driving ability after drinking. Perhaps the balloon - on a -tube -- sold to individuals -- is the answer.

The publisher of a prize - winning weekly says that a typical issue of his newspaper is composed of ninety per cent advertising.

"Fifty per cent is paid for by local merchants and forty per cent is contributed by the newspaper to community institutions," he said.

The publisher indicated that nearly all of his news stories and editorials involved the promotion of community welfare -- that is, stories on schools, libraries, government, civic clubs, churches, agriculture, industry, recognition of individuals, and countless charity drives.

Because of the amount of free publicity given to institutions it is sometimes difficult to understand why editors sometimes reject certain publicity as an effort to obtain free advertising.

In fact, it is sometimes difficult for an editor to make the distinction. A compromise is often the result. The construction of a new office building may be worthy of news coverage. But specific information on conditions of rentals should be the subject of paid advertising.

News stories and advertising are never a substitute for one or the other. The news story is controlled by the editor and contains only what he regards as being in the public interest.

Advertising is controlled by the private business. It contains specific details on buying conditions which leads to commercial action. Advertising may repeat information which is not acceptable in news coverage.

THE ENIGMA OF THE EXTREMIST NSA

An article appearing in the Washington Post, the morning newspaper here in the nation's Capital, reported a case of government subsidy of left - wing extremism.

The news story said "NSA (the National Student Association) is subsidized with about $600,000 a year from the Ford, Field and Rockefeller Foundations, the AFL- CIO, the Department of State and other well - heeled organizations."

Note that the article states that part of NSA's funds are received from the State Department, that department charged with the responsibility of conducting our foreign policy and carrying out the programs of our government in Southeast Asia - policies and programs which the student association has consistently opposed.

Over the past several years the activities of NSA have disturbed others, including concerned lawmakers in the Capital. For, despite its tax - exempt status, NSA has persistently participated in blatant political activities. During the past several years it has become increasingly critical of a strong American foreign policy especially in Southeast Asia.

NSA has passed resolution calling for the abolition of the House Committee on Un- American Activities, U. S. sponsorship of Red China's admission to the United Nations, and for a halt to U. S. bombing of North Viet Nam. This tax - exempt student association and recipient of funds from the State Department has also passed resolutions calling for the inclusion of the Viet Cong (the Communist National Liberation Front) in any negotiations for a ceasefire - and for an end to what the association describes as all U. S. "aggressive military action in Viet Nam."

NSA has passed resolutions opposing the Internal Security Act of 1950, and supporting the free (filthy) speech movement at the University of California at Berkeley. The student association has passed resolutions calling for an infinite number of other extremist positons.

NSA has consistently refused to stick to its charter, which specifically prohibits its participation in partisan political activity. It has refused to abide by the proyisons of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, under which it obtained its tax exemption status.

That section of the Code allows tax exemptions for "corporations organized and operated exclusively for educational purposes, no substantial part of which is carrying on propaganda, or otherwise attempting to influence legislation, and which does not participate in . . . including the publishing or distributing of statements . . . any political campaing."

Nevertheless, NSA continues with its political activity, much of which is an effort to influence legislation before the Congress.

Many observers wonder how NSA gets away with trying to influence legislation while keeping its tax - exempt status - especially when one considers the fact that other organizations, which shall remain nameless, do not try to influence legislation but discover their tax - exempt status is subjected to constant Internal Revenue Service review, or revocation.

The National Review, that suave puncturer of puereaucratic pomposity and left - wing foolishness, has described NSA as "a twenty - year - old effrontery which is tax- exempt, and uses tax - free dollars and even government dollars, in order to make left - wing politics."

This bureaucratic selectivity of those who are in and those who are out, tax- wise, is due to one or all of three things: it is the democratic solution to a problem; the IRS is astigmatic; or youth must be served even if, as National Review so philosophically wrote, "it is galling to have to pay money to certify (NSA) contempt in which they hold their elders."

The enigma of NSA is that it continues on propagating its prejudices despite a thoughtful appraisal from a thoughtful conservative journal such as National Review and an actual newspaper account from none other than the port - polarized New York Times. It is interesting to see that NSA has been noticed by such diverse journals which, when not reporting world events and appraising them in their own way, take each other on before breakfast just to keep in polemical shape.

According to Henry Raymont, writing in the New York Times, May 23 of this year:

"The leadership of the largest American student organization has given . . . a bleak and discouraging account of political unrest and the prospects of the war in South Viet Nam.

"A report circulated by the National Student Association predicted that there would be no internal peace in South Viet Nam until the United Buddhist Church assumes an active role in a constitutional government. It scored the U. S. for continuing to support the military junta.

"It also urged that American policies, no matter how well - intentioned, had hopelessly alienated most of the civilian population, had created suspicions about the United States 'domination' and had generally failed to achieve meaningful goals in economic and social assistance.

"The 4,240 word document is a journal of a two - week visit to South Vietnam by Philip Sherburne, NSA president, and two other officers, Malcolm Kovacs and Gregory Delin.

"Mr. Sherburne, a 23-year-old graduate of the University of Oregon, disclosed . . . that the delegation had made the trip at the expense of the State Department."

Thus we see the State Department financing the travel of officers of NSA to South Viet Nam, young men who promptly return home to blast away at our country's foreign policy in that part of the world.

NEW YORK (AP) — We all say we want the truth, but rarely do we want it put to us too plainly.

For the truth, like any other bitter medicine, is more palatable when sugar-coated.

That is why we so often have to resort, in communicating with one another, to doubletalk: It enables us to dole out conversational sugar to another person without disturbing him with reality.

The ability to use double-talk is the hallmark of maturity and adulthood. So is the ability to recognize double-talk — and not be fooled by it.

For the beginner, here are a few typical examples of doubletalk followed, in each case, by their literal translations:

"This job has unlimited opportunity."

—The pay is lousy.

"It's a lovely apartment. It even has a view of the river from the kitchen."

—But you have to stand on the stove to see it.

"All I want from you is your honest, unbiased opinion."

—If you don't agree with me, shut up.

"Frankly, I recommend our chicken a la king today—it's superlative."

—The chef cooked so much of it the day before yesterday we haven't been able to get rid of it.

"Your fiance must be awful rich, or crazy in love with you, to give you such a beautiful engagement ring."

—Poor thing, I'll bet she had to pay for it herself.

"It's not because I have four kids to clothe and feed that I'm asking for a merit raise—it's because I feel I deserve one."

—It's the four kids.

"That diet really has worked wonders for you. Since you took off those 20 pounds, your face looks a lot thinner."

—And twice as wrinkled.

"It's heartwarming to see a young fellow like you get ahead in the organization so fast."

—It's even more heartwarming to know that it's not my job you're after.

"Ha, ha, ha, ha, ha, ha, ha We can always count on you, boss, to come up with a new one."

—My old grandpappy used to like that joke, too, but it sounded funny when he told it.

"Don't stay up for me, honey. I'll probably have to work late at the office tonight."

—Unless my secretary has a date with another guy.

"Our profits dipped somewhat during the first half of the year because of a needed purchase of emergency supplies which I trust won't be duplicated."

—We had to buy a whale of a lot of red ink.

"I'll always remain your soul sister, Ronnie, but I'm afraid I must give you back your wax rose and amber beads."

—Since I found a boyfriend with a steady job, I don't want to be a hippie anymore.

"Much as I like to be of every possible service to a constituent, I find that in this case my hands are tied."

—This bum has got a real nerve. Asking for favors, and he didn't chip in a thin dime for my last campaign.

This proves, by the number left in stock, that one Fourth of July per year is now inadequate, the country has grown so."

MEDITERRANEAN FLEET IN DANGER

Since the end of World War II the Mediterranean Sea and surrounding countries have been friendly to the U. S. Recently, however, the situation has been completely reversed. In 1956 Russia got a foothold in the Mediterranean by gaining influence over Egypt when the U. S. refused to finance the Aswan Dam on the Nile River. During the next 10 years the situation worsened as pro-Russian and anti-U.S. propaganda flowed through the Middle East. The main theme of this propaganda was that the U. S. was supporting Isreal against the well-being of the Arab nations.

The Israeli-Arab War of 1967 resulted in extreme hostality by many Arabs toward the U.S., Turkey now allows Soviet naval and supply ships to sail freely from the Black Sea into the Mediterranean. The Russian fleet there now is as large as the U. S. Fleet there, with a home port in Alexandria, Egypt. This is the first Russian Fleet ever to be based in the Mediterranean. Its presence gives rise to the question of whether or not the U. S. position there is imparied or totally lost.

Mosloms are natural anti-Communists, and it was not easy for the Moslem world to be persuaded away from its traditionally friendly stance toward the U. S. and the free world. Moscow had to have a lot of help from our State Department to accomplish it.

If we can lose the friendship of the Moslem world and thus the Mediterranean Sea, will we next lose the friendship of the Asiatics and thus the Pacific Ocean? Events taking place in Vietnam and Korea at present may be a step in that direction.

Washington - Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

DREW PEARSON SAYS: Two old friends of HHH run against him; Sen. George McGovern is Humphrey's old neighbor; auto manufacturers plan price increase on 1969 cars.

WASHINGTON -- Hubert Humphrey is a believer in competition. In fact he has trained and educated his competition. Sometimes, however, he wishes that the men he has trained wouldn't decide to compete with him just as he is reaching for life's biggest goal.

It was Humphrey, then mayor of Minneapolis and a founder of the Democratic farmer - labor party, who saw the political appeal of a young professor at St. Thomas College in St. Paul and helped him get elected to the house of representatives in 1948. Ten years later, Humphrey helped the young congressman get elected to the senate.

Today that young professor, Eugene McCarthy, is running against Humphrey for President.

In 1957 another young professor, this time from South Dakota, got elected to Congress and because he admired Humphrey, they both being natives of South Dakota, he asked Humphrey's advice about getting a house in Washington. Hubert recommended a modest neighborhood in Chevy Chase where prices were not too high.

So young congressman George McGovern took a mortgage on a house next door to Hubert's at Coquelin terrace.

At that time the hedge between the McGoverns' and the Humphreys' back yards was so low that you could step over it; so the Humphrey and McGovern children grew up together. There wasn't even a family row when the Humphrey Dachshund infiltrated the McGovern's yard to kill the McGovern children's pet easter rabbit.

Later, when the young congressman from South Dakota wanted to run for the senate, Humphrey persuaded Lt. Gov. Frank Lindley not to run in the Democratic primary against him. This was in 1962 after Sen. Francis Case died and there was an excellent chance of electing a Democrat. Thanks to Hubert, McGovern was nominated without Democratic opposition. Hubert held a fund - raising reception for him and also approached Mary Lasker, the Democratic angel in New York, to get some campaign funds for McGovern. McGovern was elected to the senate.

Today the ex-professor from Dakota Wesleyan University is running for President against his old neighbor.

"You work with a fellow for years," Hubert mused to a friend, "then, bingo, he runs against you. However, I'm not going to get mad about it."

WHAT MAKES GEORGIE RUN?

Out in California at the Democratic caucus last week, Pierre Salinger, former press secretary to President Kennedy, confided to friends that Kennedy family supporters were putting Sen. McGovern in the race because of the snide speech Eugene McCarthy had made as a eulogy to Bobby Kennedy. They were down on McCarthy, Salinger said.

Two weeks earlier, Sen. McGovern had been in California, conferring with speaker Jesse Unruh, leader of the Kennedy forces, who aspires to be Governor of California. McGovern was quoted as saying he probably could not support Hubert Humphrey.

Back in Washington McGovern came to see his old neighbor, the Vice President, said he had been misquoted.

A week later he was in Chicago at another meeting, also attended by speaker Unruh and Kennedy family supporters. They persuaded him to run. McGovern's will be a holding operation in the hope of tieing up the Democratic convention. If so, it's barely possible, though not probable, that the Kennedys can pick their own candidate.

HIGHER—PRICED CARS

It looks as if the auto industry is getting ready to follow the steel industry in bucking the White House for a price increase on 1969 cars.

The excuse will be added safety features, though actually the only safety features next year will be two head supports, to prevent neck injuries from rear-end collisions. The head supports will cost around $10. Despite this, government experts have word from Detroit that new car prices will be upped around $100.

Actually, increased auto profits and increased productivity should lead to decreased prices. However, all signs indicate that General Motors will increase prices across the board and that the others of the big three will follow.

Some people are wondering what happened to Sen. Abe Ribicoff's hearings which began last February with a demand that the Motor Moguls make public the details regarding the cost of safety devices. The Ribicoff hearings have not petered out into a plan whereby the auto industry gives cost data to the bureau of labor statistics which promptly treats them as if they were a military secret. Even the Highway Safety Bureau has not been able to get a look at these cost figures.

This is a strange anti - climax for senate hearings which began with such a flourish. However, the fact is that Ribicoff, an excellent senator, faces a tough relection battle in Connecticut. If he bucks the auto industry, it can send money into Connecticut to defeat him.

PAPA AGNEW

The original name of the GOP nominee for Vice President is Anagnostopoulos, which means "The son of a reader."

In Greece, a reader is a lay officer of the Greek Orthodox church. His job is to read to the congregation.

"Papa" Anagnostopoulos, Father of Spiro T. Agnew, the Governor of Maryland, was a restaurant owner in Baltimore, and exceptionally well educated for an immigrant. He was active in Ahepa, the American Hellenic Organization, where he wanted more scholarship and was one of the first to urge that Greek immigrants look upon the United States as a permanent home, not a temporary resting place.

"If we follow this path," said Papa Anagnostopoulos, "We will see the day when one of our descendants is in the White House."

How prophetic was Anagnostopoulos?

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

REPUBLICAN THINK TANKS:

No Big City Black Revolt Against Nixon Ticket Reported Despite Southern Power at Convention.

New York: -- Here, a continent away from Dick Nixon's think tank, I went into the Negro community to dig the black reaction to the Republican nominees, whose power bedrock at the convention was the South.

In Washington, Ray Bliss' professionals at the Republican National Committee had barely unpacked their bags, when they went into secluded, moody and headachy meditation in their I-Street think tank.

Their problem: How to get that vital big city vote from the black populace, the labor people, and the ethnic groups, now that the impression is rampant that South Carolina's Strom Thurmond had been the power broker during the closed - door infighting.

Fact is, I found no black outcry. Jackie Robinson batted Dick Nixon around. But he's true - blue Rockefeller.

Strangely, the message from tough militants was calmer. The militant black leader, Roy Innis, National Director of the Congress of Racial Equlity (CORE), which can tie up a city quicker than you can say Jackie Robinson, laid it on the line:

"I'm not as horrified over the Agnew nomination as some people seem to be," Innis said, in that terse, staccato manner of his. "But I don't see that he's going to add anything.

"As for Dick Nixon, I hope that he understands that by black capitalism -- which he has been discussing-- we mean the acquisition of the instruments of black capitalism, the community - owned means of operating shops, factories, stores and industry. We're not just interested in creating 10 or 15 black capitalists. There's a big difference. But we'll see.

"CORE has proposed legislation which you and I have discussed before, and we'll see which candidate backs our version of black capitalism and industrial community ownership.

"We will encompass all types -- some individuals, some small partnerships, some cooperatives. What we want is a broad black industrialism, based on community action, ownership and management, in the hands of the blacks, all the blacks in the community."

Nor were there any sharper reactions from such men as the NAACP's Roy Wilkins. Wilkins criticized the Republican unemployment plank, saying it fails to recognize that the federal government will have to create the jobs that private industry so far has not been able to provide. He, too, will wait and see, and analyze and call a conference, and then let his followers in the big cities campaign as they see it.

From the labor people the reaction to the GOP ticket sprang from a conditioned reflex of two decades. It was not so much points South which disturbed the national labor leaders. It was the simple nomination of Dick Nixon and the points in the platform.

Gov. Agnew doesn't bother them. They're cynics. If Mr. Agnew, as a Republican, was a hero in labor circles when he was proselytizing for Nelson Rockefeller until last March, he's not automatically a bum because he's now with Dick Nixon.

As one high labor spokesman said of the plank:

'It hands us praise in the first paragraph and gives us the business in the rest of the statement."

It is tough. The labor plank demands tougher enforcement of the Taft - Hartley Law and the Landrum - Griffin Act. It urges strong legislation to handle national emergency strikes. It slaps at the White House for alleged "back door" pressure against employers during vital labor stoppages. In a few sentences it hits all of labor's sensitive nerve centers.

For example, it says that the GOP would "bar government - coerced strike settlements that cynically disregard the public interest and accelerate inflation."

This is not how the labor leaders see it. And when AFL-CIO president George Meany testifies in Chicago at about 10 a.m., August 22, before the Democratic Party platform committee, he'll sledgehammer the Republicans as only he can do it.

The public doesn't pay much attention to such nuances these circus days. But the labor movement's own press will.

Week after week, it will hammer at Messrs. Nixon and Agnew. These labor papers, with circulations in the millions, concentrated in the big cities and now middle - class suburbs, may have their effect.

The labor press, no doubt, will call it a "Southern conservative conspiracy" against working people.

Labor will be aiming at the "big city" vote, which these days is cast on both sides of the city line.

If the assault succeeds, and costs the Nixon - Agnew ticket a share of the megalopolises ballots among blacks and whites the Republicans will be hur badly.

If not, if the Nixon - Agnew ticket gets its share of the blac votes, the labor ballots th ethnic outpouring, th Republicans will win.

Just how accomplished is th first, perhaps for the moment the only order of the day in th GOP think tank.

Beaumont ran its tourney slate to 4-0 by trimming Sikeston two games last night 6-5 and 4-2. Kneeling, from left, are Steve Rumsey, Donald Berry, Russell Ball, John S. Kerr, Craig Pemberton, Byron Lord, Gregg Carpenter, Randy Markwardt and Raymond Walters. Standing, R. G. Walters, coach; Wayne Huglund, Scott Wise, Tom Crawford, David Bernsen, Roony Donahoe, Tommy Voss, Jay Temple, Douglas Ault, Ray McDermad, manager.

Sikeston, Mo., La Junta, Colo., and Ft. Worth were eliminated in yesterday's playoffs of the 1968 south plains regional Connie Mack baseball tournament at VFW stadium.

Potlatch went into yesterday's playoffs as one of the tourney's two undefeated teams but came out with two losses, both to Beaumont, Tex., 6-5 and 4-2. The Texans remained unbeaten.

It was the day of the hitters as 55 hits were collected, changing the pattern of the other eight games in which pitching and hitting dominated play.

Defense was also slack as 36 errors were recorded in the four contests.

It was a disastrous night for Sikeston and Manager N. P. McDaniel, who were the defending South Plains champions, having won the tourney at Lamar last year. They were forced into playing a double-header.

El Paso took the measure of La Junta, 7-5 in yesterday's opener and Grand Prairie, Tex., edged Ft. Worth 3-2 in eight innings.

The two winners met at 11 a.m. today to decide who will meet Beaumont in the 7 p.m. match tonight. A Beaumont loss would force this morning's winner to play Beaumont in a double header tonight.

Five runs battled in by Beaumont's second baseman, Tom Crawford, was the big thorn in the Foresters' side as they made their bid for Farmington, N. M., and the World Series.

Crawford lashed two hits and drove in three RBI's in the first contest. He continued his menace to the host in the second game by dropping in a double in the first inning to put his team on the scoreboard.

Rick Wilson took the loss in the opening game, having relieved Jim King.

Tim Halter put in his bid for three consecutive wins as he appeared on the mound for the Foresters in the second game after having won Tuesday and Wednesday nights.

It was the 27th victory of the year for Beaumont, which lost but one contest coming into the tourney.

Sylvan Rothschild hammered a 380-foot home run over the left field fence in yesterday's opener. His El Paso team posted a rally to trim La Junta 7-5 after it had taken a 4-0 lead in the first.

Rothschild's homer put El Paso withing one run of the leaders as one was aboard when he lofted the ball out of the park.

A run in the bottom of the eighth inning kept Grand Prairie alive after it had battled through four scoreless frames with Ft. Worth after having noticed the score in the third inning.

Brent Skillman advanced home on the infield hit of Steve Watkins after he had reached first on being hit by a pitched ball. He advanced to second on Bryon Williams' sacrifice.

Only three teams remain in the running for the 1968 title, all from Texas - Grand Prairie, El Paso and Beaumont.

CHARLIE DYE, holding glove and Roger McDaniel trot off the field Wednesday night after Sikeston Potlatch defeated Ft. Worth for the first time in eight years in the Connie Mack baseball tournament playoffs, Sikeston went 10 innings for a 3-2 victory.

St. Louis Back In Front By 14

By The Associated Press

The duel for the batting lead between Matty Alou and Pete Rose seems to be the last remnant of competition for a National League top position now that St. Louis has turned back the late challenge of the Chicago Cubs.

Only three points separate Alou and Rose today while the first-place Cardinals are 14 games in front of the runnerup Cubs. Alou, 1966 NL batting king, cracked two hits in four tries Thursday night as the Pittsburgh Pirates blanked San Francisco 2-0 behind Steve Blass' four-hitter. The Cards walloped the Cubs 8-0 and Houston edged Philadelphia 3-2 in the only other National League games.

There was more action in the American League where Boston blanked Chicago 3-0, Baltimore split a doubleheader with Minnesota, winning the opener 4-3 and losing the nightcap, 2-1, Oakland downed the New York Yankees 4-3, and California beat Washington 3-1.

Alou's safeties raised his average to .330. Rose leads with .333 while another Cincinnati Red, Alex Johnson is third at .321.

San Francisco's Willie McCovey has a commanding lead in homers and runs batted in with 30 and 77, respectively, while Juan Marichal, another Giant is a solid frontrunner in most pitching victories with 21.

Alou triggered a two-run Pirate first inning that carried Blass to his 10th victory against five defeats. Matty singled and later scored on Donn Clendenon's one-bagger. The second run came home when third baseman Jim Hart erred on Manny Mota's grounder.

Blass was in trouble only in the third inning when Jay Alou, Matty's brother, singled and moved to second on Hal Lanier's single. However, Blass got losing pitcher Bob Bolin, 6-4, on a pop foul and fanned Bobby Bonds and Ron Hunt. The setback ended the Giants' fivegame winning streak.

Mike Shannon and Nelson Briles starred for the Cardinals. Shannon belted the first grand slam homer of his career and drove in another run with a single. Briles pitched a seven-hitter in recording his 16th triumph against seven losses.

Tourney Chatter

As the south plains regional moves into the fourth day of rugged action only three teams remain in the contention for the championship. The wear and tere is beginning to show on the pitching staffs of all baseball teams. Yesterday was the first day that there was not a shut out.

The host, Sikeston Potlatch, was in glory after defeating a tough crew from Ft. Worth Wednesday night. The Ft. Worth teams of the past six years have given Potlatch trouble in almost all regionals. Wednesday was the first time that a Sikeston team has defeated them. Their glory was short lived for in last night's games Sikeston took a double defeat from Beaumont, Tex., and was eliminated from the tournament.

Last year Sikeston won the regionals and went to the world series, finishing fifth. Sikeston had five players off last year's team back but could not put things together last night. Sikeston was the only team to return to the regional from the teams that were at Lamar, Colo., last year.

Hobbs William the coach of Grand Prairie, Tex., said that he thought the regional was more than just an success but also a great experience for him and all players. He commended the entire town for a warm welcome that has not worn off. He said that the people of Sikeston were the most warm hearted that he has ever met.

The people of Sikeston really made their presence known last night by filling the stands at VFW park fuller than any previous night. A larger crowd is expected tonight as the tournament moves nearer to finding a new champion to carry the South Plains colors to the world series in Farmington, N. M.

Sikeston Schools Equipped to Locate Child's Handicaps and Overcome Them

By BARBARA LACY

Does your child dislike school? Is he unable to understand directions; unable to concentrate as long as others his age do?

Do you shun his problems off by saying, "I never could do arithmetic, that's why Johnny can't" or "He inherited my dislike for reading"?

If your Johnny is having trouble in school he may be one of the 20 per cent of Sikeston children who have a special learning problem; a problem that until recently wasn't diagnosable or treatable. True, it might be a problem that you had in school, but today, with trained personnel and electronic equipment, most Johnnys can learn to overcome learning disabilities.

How? That's what the special service teachers in the Sikeston school system are discovering this week at a first-of-its-kind workshop in Sikeston. Attending the five-day workshop at the regional diagnostic clinic, are remedial reading teachers, special education teachers, speech clinicians, guidance counselors, school nurses, social workers and teachers and other staff members from the clinic.

The cooperative venture between the school system and the Clinic is under the direction of Wade Bedwell, assistant director of elementary education in charge of special services and kindergarten, and a psychologist at the clinic. The 13 educators attending the workshop will learn how to use the new materials and machines purchased for the school system as well as how to use other resources in the Sikeston area now available to the school, such as hospital tests for children with suspected brain damage.

"Some children overcome their problems without help," Bedwell explained. "Others can't overcome them and get farther and farther behind until they drop out."

What are their problems?

A great majority center around the senses;" Bedwell said, "seeing and learning. A child may be able to see, but he doesn't see what the rest of us do, he may see upside down or backwards. Others can read but can't understand spoken directions. Some have great difficulty working arithmetic problems, that is, they can't visualize abstract concepts.

Some with speech defects don't realize that there is anything wrong with the way that they talk, or their speech problems stem from bad habits at home or baby talk.

"These children are not deaf of blind or mentally defective. They have what we call a learning disability which refers to a specific disorder of one or more of the processes of speech, language, perception, behavior, reading, spelling or arithmetic.

Bedwell emphasized the work specific. "It implies," he said, "that the child has many assets but that he also has a specific problem in one or more areas. The term learning disability suggests also that the disability is related to education and the communications processes.

"There is a wide range of possible disorders, some that are just being discovered. With our new techniques and machines we are discovering problems that even medical doctors didn't know existed.

One disorder may be basic to another. For instance, a reading disability may have at it's base, a preception disorder which accounts for the child's inability to read.

Children with perceptual disorders have normal sensual abilities but do not perceive or recognize accurately in one or more of their senses. A child, who is unable to say which finger has been touched but who knows that one of his fingers has been touched, is an example. A another child might be able to hear sounds but be unable to recognize them. Other children cannot recognize the names of his classmates until he hears their voices.

The diagnosis of a learning disability begins with an evaluation of the intellectual sensory and personality characteristics of the child to determine his development potential. Since, in many cases, it is difficult to determine whether there is a brain damage except by inference from the child's behavior, the psychological examiner is interested chiefly in the behavioral deficits rather than the location or extent of the brain damage.

The diagnostician determines the child's development potentential as well as the discrepency between his capacity and his achievement. By analyzing the child's learning processes and locating related or correlated disabilities he is able to form a hypothesis and recommend a treatment program to remove the disorder and raise the child's achievement level.

This is a new and expensive program Bedwells said. Some children slip by, it may be a year or two before we find them. But we are trying to get to them as young as possible. The Sikeston school system has the personnel and equipment to treat them.

This year three sound proof rooms have been installed in Southeast Elementary to test children in speech and hearing. A clinical audiometer to test children has been purchased. The school hopes to have remedial reading teachers in elementary schools.

It costs $5,000 to equip one classroom with the proper machine to diagnose and treat the handicapped child.

There are tests that determine the child's visual coordination, machines that photograph the child's eye movements, tests and machines that tell what is wrong with the child.

There are exercises and machines that will correct the child's problems. "For instance, we will have three teams of physical education and music teachers in the elementary schools to develop coordination in all the students," Bedwell said. "They will work together, on the gross and fine motor movements, to develop physical coordination of the large and small muscles as well as develop music appreciation.

"For the children that fall all over them selves, they will have special exercises to do several times a week.

"Our reading coordinator will work with the students and with the teachers, suggesting special helps for students.

"For the students who don't seem to the responding to corrective exercises and programs, we will refer them for further evaluations. Perhaps there is something emotionally wrong.

"Our approach to the great majority of children with learning disorders will be to appeal to the senses, with electronic equipment. These are reading machines equiped with earphones. The child will hear words and see them at the same time. These machines can be programed to work many ways and thus can be used to treat a wide variety of disorders.

"Just seeing what they are hearing helps many children with visual and hearing disorders. Children who can't distinguish between sounds can learn phonics by hearing and seeing two related words and through repitation learn the differences. A child's memory may be increased by flashing number sequences on the scene of increasing complexity, or by saying sentences of increasing length to the child for him to repeat.

"We have a lot of methods to increase the childs eye span; one of them is for the machine to flash on its screen phrases of increasing length.

"We are using a team approach. We will call in anyone we think can help the child. And to make the correct diagnosis, we need more than one specialists opinion.

"The important thing is, we are trying to get away from classifying a child as mentally retarded or just stupid. We want every child to work up to his potential. If we can find what is wrong, he'll enjoy school."

Malden Schools Open Aug. 26

MALDEN -- The 1968-69 school year will open Aug. 26, with enrollment for freshmen and sophomores; juniors and seniors will enroll on Tuesday; Wednesday will be devoted to a teachers meeting; Thursday will be student orientation day, buses will run and students will be returned home for lunch; the first regular day of school will be Friday, Aug. 30.

Buses will transport students residing more than one-half mile from the school. Buses will not stop inside this limit to pick up or discharge passengers.

The board of education on Aug. 12, voted to have a closed campus this year. This means that students will not be permitted to leave the school grounds during the noon period unless they are picked up and returned by their parents.

The board said that this is being done for the safety of the school child and to provide a better balanced educational program for the children.

Bids on milk were received from four dairies. All were the same price, six cents per half-pint. The contract was awarded to Foremost Dairy for the 1968-69 school year.

The basement of the old elementary school building will be remodeled and used this year as a kindergarten. The kindergarten for the past two and one - half years has been at the Airport. Enrollment for kindergarten will be held Aug. 20, in the high school cafeteria.

Prague: Modern People In A Medieval Setting

By BOB COCHNAR
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—On a midsummer's night in Prague, when only the clickity-clicks of a passing tram and the tinny wail of "Mrs. Robinson" from a transistor radio remind the visitor of the 20th century, the atmosphere at the Charles Bridge is positively medieval.

The baroque immensity of Hradcany Castle—now the seat of government—looms above the old sector, guarded by the Gothic spires of churches and the jagged escarpments which have seen centuries of wars and occupations.

Prague is a city caught between the sleepy comfort of an age long dead and the stridency of contemporary life. And the recent liberal movement has sharply etched the dichotomy.

At first light, the medievalism vanishes. The streets crowd with cars, trolleys and people. The Vltava River, about which Smetana wrote such intensely nationalistic music, bustles with barges and the occasional punt of a tourist or worker on his day off.

The citizens of Prague are intensely aware of history and delight in directing the visitor to one or more of the houses where the writer Franz Kafka lived, now that Kafka is an "approved" person. They also point, with some amusement, to the great pedestal from which a stone Stalin once peered disapprovingly. The statue was toppled several years ago when Stalin became a "nonperson."

Unlike the Slovaks who occupy the eastern area of Czechoslovakia, the Czechs of Prague consider themselves tied to Western Europe's cultural traditions. To the Czechs, most Slovaks are little better than Russians and Russians, of course, are barbarians.

That's why the bookstores are filled with inexpensive paperbacks (popular American authors: Hemingway, Fitzgerald, Baldwin, Styron and, curiously, Norman Mailer) and superb classical records which can be purchased for as little at $2.

At the same time, scarce consumer goods are almost beyond the reach of the average worker. But performances at the magnificent baroque opera house play to SRO audiences.

Starchy hotels offer rock 'n' roll music nightly and poetry readings are regular happenings in the many wine houses. "Laterna Magica," the unique sound-light-film-people show which made a spash at the Czechoslovakian Pavilion of Expo '67, still packs them in at its permanent home just off Wenceslaus Square.

And, of course, there's the movies. Barandov Studios, located in the hills above Prague, has been turning out first-class films since the '20s, although Americans weren't really aware of this until "The Shop on Main Street" won an Academy Award in 1967.

American actor Bradford Dillman, on location in Prague for "The Bridge at Remagen," the first American film to be made in Czechoslovakia (by David Wolper for United Artists, says that Czech technicians "do amazing things on ridiculously small budgets. Our film, to the Czechs, is a superspectacle but they know their jobs well."

By Hollywood standards, the equipment at Barandov is out of date, but this hasn't stopped the studio from producing such superlative films as "Closely Watched Trains" and "The Shop on Main Street."

In all, even a once-oppressive Communist regime couldn't stop Czechs from expressing themselves in the arts. Abstract art, widely condemned elsewhere in East Europe, has been flourishing for years, "Socialist realism" receives snickers from discerning Czechs.

And now that Alexandre Dubcek, the Communist party chief, seems to be succeeding in his programs of "democratic socialism," much to the dismay of the Russians, the gates of culture are swinging wide open.

Press censorship has been lifted and, for the first time since 1948, writers have been able to say what they think. "All this freedom is a bit euphoric," a journalist confessed. "You have to understand that it takes some time to become adjusted to the fact that one can criticize without being clapped in jail."

The liberalization, one writer argues, was just a matter of time. "After all," he says," we live too close to West Germany and Austria. We know what is happening there and we know it could happen here as well. And now, finally, it may very well happen."

Still, the Czechs can poke fun at the loosening. Author Pavel Kohout, with tongue in cheek, suggests that eventually "The Central Administration of Publications will see to it with firmness that the newspapers and publishers print every manuscript in turn, according to when it is received."

He adds. "I do not dare to foresee what the next developments will be, but one thing must be admitted by even the worst pessimist: A great time lies ahead for us all—unless something else bars our way again.")

SHIRT-SLEEVE diplomacy in the Philippines. Michigan's former governor, G. Mennen Williams, wears a native shirt made of pineapple fiber in his role as newly appointed ambassador to the islands.

CONTEMPORARY COMMUNIST sentries guard the gates of Prague's presidential palace beneath mythological statues that have been standing guard since the golden age of the kings of Bohemia. The city's medieval past is never far from sight in the Czechoslovakian capital.

PLASTER MONUMENT to Ernesto (Che) Guevara, the Communist guerrilla chief who was killed by Bolivian troops last October, is admired by a youngster in a Santiago, Chile, park. The bust is the work of three leftist sculptors.

PROUD POP, actor Glenn Ford has reason to smile. His son Peter, 22, left, who just received his Bachelor of Arts degree in cinema from the University of Southern California, is making his motion picture debut in a film starring his dad.

GEARED to modern living, these units will go into hydraulic transmissions for boats, where they reportedly provide better operating control by enabling the skipper to shift from forward to reverse without passing in neutral.

STEEL/1967
WORLD PRODUCTION

WORLD OUTPUT—546 Million Tons

The United States is still the world's leading steel producer but the Soviet Union and the six-nation European Common Market are pulling closer. Japan, which showed the sharpest rise in output in 1967—from 53 million tons to 69 million, is the leading exporter, shipping 4.5 million tons of steel products to the United States alone.

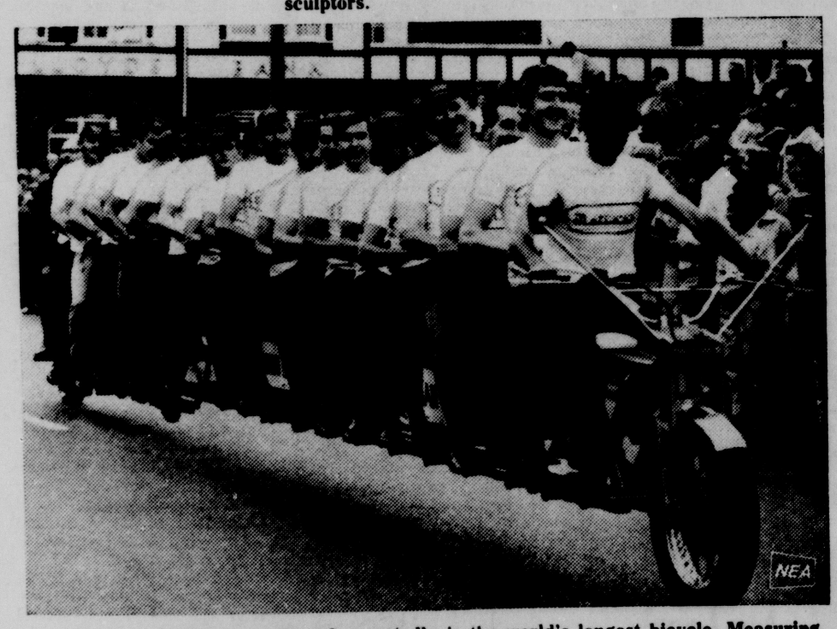

QUICK QUIZ

Q—When did the U.S. Army adopt olive drab uniforms?

A—Traditional blue uniforms were discarded in favor of olive drab in 1902. Experience during the Spanish-American War had taught that blue is decidedly too good a target.

Q—How can leap years be determined?

A—Any year the number of which is divisible by four is a leap year, excepting century years, which must be divisible by 400. The year 1968 is a leap year.

COMMUNAL BIKE seats 20 and reportedly is the world's longest bicycle. Measuring more than 35 feet long, its weight exceeds two tons when fully loaded. Power comes from pedals pumped by rear eight riders. It is seen here in England.

REAL SMALL, only eight inches high, this 7-day-old baby hippo looks larger until you realize its mother is a pigmy. The baby was born at an Australian zoo in Sydney.

School Fashions Have Flair

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—There's gaiety and variety in school fashions this fall.

School girls are more fashion-conscious than they once were and much of the credit for this change goes to young mothers who are aware of fashion news—who have been wearing short hemlines and belted waists themselves.

There are coats for every occasion, dress-up coats for weekend and party wear as well as classic and contemporary styles for sports and every-day sojourns to school. Individuality and variety of shape with more fit and flare and interesting detail has been inspired and encouraged by the National Board of the Coat and Suit Industry. There are side-button closings in addition to single-and double-breasted ones. Belts accent the waistline and half belts hold back fullness, inverted pleats or panels.

Leather trimmings, metal buttons, wider lapels and fur or fur fabric collars are in the picture. And pile or quilted nylon linings give both smartness and warmth.

The big fashion story is fabric which determines the style. New fabrics come in lush depths of texture and color. There are handsome tweeds, gabardines, fleeces, diagonal- and ottoman ribbed monotones, Shetlands, fur-like fabrics, plaids and tartans. Melton, corduroy, heavy duck and leatherlike fabric adapt to the many sport and casual styles.

Colors are rich—brown tones, grays, dark greens and navy are most popular with red, burgundy, electric blue and camel running a close race.

Individuality and diversity are typical of the styles for 1968 and there are designs, fabrics and colors to suit the taste of every school and college girl.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

No fashion is newer or more wanted by college girls than the Nehru jacket. The example (left), complete with silver chain, comes in three pieces—jacket, skirt and pants. Smart shetland wool coat (right) is neatly tailored with concealed side closing, wide self-belt and Peter Pan collar. These designs were chosen by the National Board of the Coat and Suit Industry for fall promotion.

If You Were the Judge

Court Upholds Right of Man to Silence Friend

By Jack Strauss, LL. B.

Nicely Nelson found himself in more trouble than a fox surrounded by a pack of hound dogs. The F.B.I. was checking on him and before long he was afraid they might have him in check-mate because of his suspected unsavory activities.

To counter the investigation, Nicely warned his friend Horace that it would be a grave mistake if he didn't keep his mouth shut. More concerned with the state of his health than answering F.B.I. questions, Horace heeded the warning.

The result: Nicely was arrested and charged with violating a law that made it a crime to interfere with the "administration of justice."

"Nicely reduced Horace to a state of silence more effectively," the judge was told, "then a pack of sleeping pills."

"I wasn't interfering with the administration of justice," Nicely protested in his own defense. "All I did was to suggest that Horace not talk to the F.B.I. in any case, Besides, the F.B.I. doesn't administer justice. If anything, they dispense with it."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you convict Nicely Nelson of interfering with the administration of justice?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that Nicely hadn't interfered with the "administration of justice" since the F.B.I. is an investigating rather than a judicial arm of the government and does not administer justice.

(Based upon a 1956 U. S. District Court Decision)

The Prayer
from
The Upper Room

The publican, standing afar off, would not lift up so much as his eyes unto heaven, but smote upon his breast, saying, God be merciful to me a sinner. (Luke 18:13)

PRAYER: Hear our prayer, O Lord. Supply our needs this day. May we become as little children in Your sight. Forgive us our sins, and we shall never cease to praise Your name. Amen.

There are about 800,000 head of cattle in the world, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

BEDFORD, Mass. (AP) An electronic automatic bus identification system that can summon police, maintenance or supervisory assistance, as well as improve efficiency, was introduced here by Sylvania Electric Products Inc.

The system features a solid-state FM receiver than can be mounted on utility poles or buildings along bus routes. Each bus in a fleet would be equipped with a tiny FM transmitter which could send out a special identification signal continuously.

As the bus comes within 50 feet of a receiver, its signal is picked up and transmitted to a central computer location where it is available to dispatchers.

The part of the system that calls police, maintenance or supervisors is an "emergency beacon" and is an optional feature.

Ann Landers

Teen Ager Lambasts Crew Cuts

Dear Ann Landers: I used to think you were a friend of us teens but now I know you are our enemy. I didn't mind when you put the knock on long hair for boys, most square middle-aged people feel the same way. But when you said you hoped the crew cut would come back because it is clean looking, I almost popped a blood vessel.

The crew cut is the most repulsive looking hairstyle ever created. It makes a guy look like he is ready for the electric chair. It is dumb to chop off a fellow's hair and make him look bald. Baldness comes soon enough.

Anybody who would come out in favor of the crew cut is probably wearing highbutton shoes and using a marcel iron. Why don't you retire, Annie? You are too old for the job. -- CHICKEN

Dear Chicken: To each his own, bub. I still like the crew cut. Shame on you for trying to put an old lady out on the street. You get five raps across the knuckles with my marcel iron!

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is in the drug business. He has been taking just about every kind of pill you can think of for 20 years. At first it was pep pills to help him through the long hours. Then he had to take tranquilizers to calm his humpy nerves. Next it was sleeping pills. Now he has to take pills to get him moving in the morning. Since he is in the business he can lay his hands on all the pills he wants.

We have been married for 23 years. Our sex life is terrible. Most of the time he is impotent. I am sure the pills are to blame. When I try to explain this to him he gets mad and says, "The REAL reason we have such a lousy love life is because you don't have any sex appeal anymore."

Pills have ruined our marriage and killed my love for my husband. Please, Ann, tell your readers to stay away from them. -- NO CITY PLEASE

Dear No: Indiscriminate use of pills can be extremely dangerous, and I have repeatedly warned my readers about this. In your husband's case the pills have apparently taken their toll. Pills often mask symptons of emotional illness and deceive a user into believing he is O.K. I hope your husband will go to a physician and level with him before he suffers a complete collapse.

Dear Ann Landers: I work for a high-powered businessman who has many peculiarities but I am willing to overlook his oddities because I love my job, the pay is excellent and I keep meeting so many interesting people through this work. I would hate to leave.

The thing that bothers me most is that my boss used to be a major in the U. S. Army and he behaves as if he's still giving orders to the troops. He insists that I say "Sir" when I speak to him. Strangely enough, after office hours he wants me to have a drink with him and he becomes overly friendly. I have no interest in getting involved with the man (he's married and 22 years my senior).

Do you have any advice on how I can keep my job and my self-respect? -- STAFF SERGEANT

Dear Sarge: Say "Yes, sir" from 9 until 5. After 5, say "No, sir."

Unsure of yourself on dates? What's right? What's wrong? Should you? Shouldn't you? Send for Ann Landers' booklet "Dating Do's and Don'ts," enclosing with your request 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Woman Seeks To Find Brother
And Two Sisters

Mrs. Mary Henson, 814 Gulf St., is seeking a brother, George E. Messersmith, and two sisters, Goldy May and Minnie Evelyn Messersmith.

Mrs. Henson's mother, Bertha Messersmith, who also lives at 814 Gulf, will observe her 79th birthday Aug. 26. A party in honor of Mrs. Messersmith is planned for Aug. 25. Mrs. Henson would like to gather her brother and sisters for the party.

In 1922 Messersmith was 11; Goldy, nine and Minnie, seven.

$450,000 Bonds Up for Parma Vote

PARMA — Residents of Parma will vote in a special election Aug. 29, on a $450,000 municipal industrial revenue bond for development project on behalf of New England Industries Incorporated, a Connecticut Corporation.

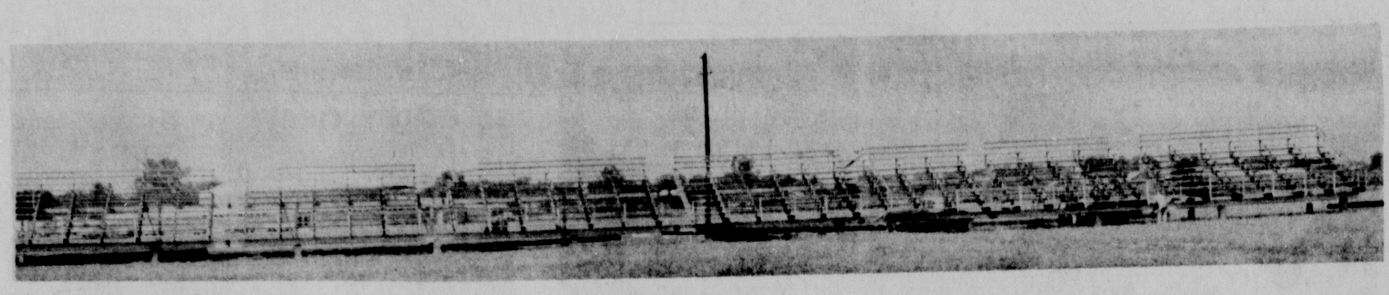

The bond issue is for an expansion project for the Inland Shoe Company of Clayton, a subsidiary of New England Industries.

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes announced on May 7 of this year that Inland planned to expand its plant in Parma to approximately four times its present size.

The division of commerce and Industrial Development has approved the proposed project as economically feasible and will not become a burden on the taxpayers of Parma in so far as it can determine from the facts and economic conditions at the present time.

The $450,000 bond issue is to be retired from revenue received from the company will not be a general obligation of the City of Parma.

The governor said the company is now located in a building that was formerly a school house and employs about 100 persons. The expansion plans call for a new building containing 100,000 square feet of floor space. The company expects to have between 400 and 500 people employed within two years after the building is completed.

DAEOC Center Will Be Operated At Hayti

HAYTI —The Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation center will be located in Hayti. Mrs. Margie Reddick of Portageville will head the Hayti program.

According to Mrs. Reddick, it will be several weeks before all the office material and work on the building will be finished. The building is located next to the Ark-Mo Power office on the south side of the square here in Hayti. This building is the location of the old City Drug Store.

Classes will be taught in the building, and those who did not receive a high school diploma may sign up. Mrs. Riddick said that anyone who wanted to sign up for General Education courses or Adult Basic Education should come by the office as soon as possible and sign up.

Those students who graduate will be given their high school diploma, and this diploma will enable them to go to the college of their choice. In other words, colleges will accept this certificate just as they would any high school diploma.

This new training center is only one branch of DAEOC and will be known as the AOC (Area Opportunity Center.)

These adult classes will start as soon as possible. Many more teachers and personnel will have to be hired for the department first. Mrs. Reddick says that they need as many as 20 students or more.

Assault Charge Dismissed, New One Lodged

POPLAR BLUFF - A charge of felonious assault was dismissed against one defendant and lodged against another Monday at Greenville in connection with a fish seining incident last month at the Wappapello Spillway.

The charge was dismissed against Vernon Dean Bounds, 25, of Buchanan, Mich., and a similar charge was filed against David Gene Cary, 27, St. Louis.

Bounds, Cary, and Cary's father and brother, John Cary, 50, and James Victor Cary, 24, were surprised by Conservation Agents Ranney McDonough and Kenneth Pate as they allegedly were seining fish immediately below the spillway gates. A scuffle follwed and one of the suspects allegedly tried to drown Agent McDonough in the river.

Bounds was charged originally, but requested a "lie detector" test and was cleared. The agents said it was an apparent case of mistaken identity in the dark, and Cary was charged with the felony yesterday by Wayne County Prosecuting Attorney Maurice B. Graham.

Bounds pleaded guilty to four misdemeanor charges in the same case yesterday. They were: $50 fine and $11 costs for resisting an officer; $10 fine and $11 costs for fishing in a restricted zone; $10 fine and $22.70 costs for fishing without a license; and $25 fine and $11 costs for fishing by an illegal method.

David Gene Cary pleaded not guilty to the same four misdemeanor charges and remained under $1,000 bond on the charge of res[illegible]ing an officer. He also was placed under $1,000 bond in the new felony charge of assault.

A preliminary hearing for Cary on the felony charge was set for Aug. 26 before Judge Elmo Barrow in Wayne County Magistrate Court, where the proceedings are taking place in the seinging incident.

John Cary and James Cary previously were assessed a total of $254.70 in fines and costs on total of six charges in the same case.

ARCHITECT'S DRAWING of a Ramada Inn to be built by April, 1969, in Sikeston. The site of the inn is at the northwest, quadrant at Interstate 55 and highway 60 at Miner. Initially, about 100 units, a restaurant, and a convention room are included in the plans. The architecture is Colonial Williamsburg. A swimming pool, courtyard and recreation area will be built.

Ramada Inn to Be Built at Miner I-55 - U. S. 60 Intersection

Plans for a Ramada Inn with 100 units to be constructed initially in Sikeston were announced today by Midamerica Hotels Corporation, with Charles L. Drury and Jerry M. Drury, both of Cape Girardeau, as stockholders.

The new motel, restaurant and convention facility will be completed by April of 1969. It will be on the northwest quadrant at Interstate 55 and U.S. 60 in Miner.

The M & M Grain Company site has been purchased along with eight acres from Joel Montgomery for an 11-acre site. The transaction was handled by the R. D. Clayton Realty Co.

Equipment of the M & M Grain will be sold Wednesday. Immediately afterward the building will be removed. Ground clearing is expected to begin Sept. 10, and construction Sept. 20.

Architecturally, Sikeston's new facility will follow a Colonial Williamsburg design prepared by Ramada's engineering and architectural staff.

The inn will be designed for approximately 200 rooms.

One hundred rooms will be built at once with a dining room and coffee shop with seating for 150. A meeting room with seating capacity for 325 will be constructed.

The restaurant will be attached to the main Inn building. Forty-one units are included in the main building, with approximately 60 other units to be attached.

The main building will have a lobby and interior corridors. The balance of the motel, which will be in the attached section, will have exterior entrances.

The Ramada Inn unit will have a playground area and swimming pool in the court yard.

Located adjacent to the Ramada Inn will be a major oil service station. Both are planned to be completed and open for business in April.

The franchise has been granted Midamerica by the Ramada Inn parent company, a nationwide chain of motels of Phoenix.

Ramada Inn is a growing chain concentrating on middle income families and commercial travelers. In six years, the chain has grown from 31 units to 186 of which more than 120 are franchised units.

Plans for developing 225 other units are underway. The inns are in 32 states, Washington, D.C., Mexico and Morocco.

Site work has been completed for the Ramada Inn of Cape Girardeau and construction will start soon. The Cape Girardeau Ramada Inn also will be owned and operated by Midamerica. A May, 1969 opening is planned for the Cape facility.

The M & M Grain Company, which has occupied the Miner site 25 years, will move to a new site one and one half miles north on Route A.

The company will maintain the farm chemical business, the seed business and the fertilizer business, Phil McGill, company president announced. M & M will curtail its grain and farm supply business.

Smoking Report Urges Stepped up Efforts to Combat Cigarette Use

WASHINGTON (AP)—A national task force today recommended stepped-up federal and private efforts to combat use of cigarettes and "stem the rising tide of early deaths and disabilities associated with smoking."

The report was immediately attacked by the Tobacco Institute as a "shockingly intemperate defamation of an industry which has led the way in medical research to seek answers in the cigarette controversy."

Among the recommendations of the task force report to the U.S. Surgeon general:

--Tighter restrictions on cigarette advertising and promotion.

—Better instruction in schools to influence youngsters to refrain from smoking.

—Greater antismoking efforts by doctors and other health professionals.

—Use of group approaches to prevent or reduce smoking.

—More insurance plans which give reduced rates to nonsmokers.

—Development and promotion of safer cigarettes.

The task force, which was appointed in 1967, said it is encouraged with early results of antismoking efforts.

It noted that cigarette consumption per capita declined sharply after the surgeon general's 1964 report on smoking and health, that it rose again in 1965 and 1966 and again is declining.

But the task force said "The problem remains, still, bigger than the efforts to combat it. Cigarette smoking is one of the foremost preventable causes of death in the United States as well as in other parts of the world."

On cigarette advertising the task force said it "is unable to see how, in the long run, a product involving the health hazards of cigarettes can continue to be advertised."

In the meantime, the group said, "higher standards for cigarette advertising should be demanded." It called on the administration to press for legislation to require that tar and nicotine contents be listed on cigarette packages and in advertising. And the task force urged a stronger warning about the health hazards on cigarettes, to be placed in advertising as well as on cigarette packages.

The task force also said such advertising should not be allowed to reach large numbers of children and young people and shouldn't equate smoking with social success or sex appeal.

The group criticized what it called "the inability or unwillingness of the cigarette industry to face up to the health hazards of cigarette smoking or even to admit they exist."

It said 'large parts of the industry" have been trying to discredit the 1964 report and its 1967 followup, concluding that "this well-financed and professionally conducted program, when addressed to the consumer, is encouraging death and disease."

In education, the task force urged the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to support training of teachers and curricula for improving school instruction on hazards of smoking.

Man Arrested With Shotgun

Fred Fraizer, 56, 226 Bowman, was arrested by Sikeston police at 12:43 a.m. today and charged with displaying a dangerous and deadly weapon and public intoxication.

Police were called by Sarah Thompson, 222 Young St., who reported Fraizer had broken into her house. Officer Hiram Gardner Jr. and Sgt. Ruben Templeton reported finding Frazier sitting in the front yard with a 20 gauge shotgun propped against the chair when the arrest was made.

In other activity, an accident occurred at 11:06 a.m. today at 138 North Prairie. Police reported a car driven by Mrs. Linda Peel, 1909 Kentucky, backed into a parked truck owned by Robert H. Lasters, 23, Canalou. No one was injured.

Police reported Napier's car was traveling south on Delmar and apparently didn't see the Thompson vehicle as she traveled east on Ruth to cross the intersection. The front end of the Napier vehicle struck the rear fender of the Thompson car, police reported.

Ruling Wiretap Did Not Convict Hoffa Upheld

CHICAGO (AP) — A federal appeals court has upheld a lower court finding that electronic eavesdropping by the government did not aid in the 1964 conviction of James R. Hoffa, imprisoned Teamsters union president.

The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals agreed Thursday with a finding by U.S. District Judge Richard B. Austin that "the government obtained no new information from the electronically eavesdropped overhearings." One of the three judges dissented.

Hoffa was sentenced to five years in prison and fined $10,000 in the 1964 conviction for fraud and conspiracy in using $1 million in union pension funds to finance a Sun Valley, Fla., real estate project.

The sentence was vacated by the U.S. Supreme Court, which ordered a hearing to determine whether admitted government wiretapping aided in the conviction.

Austin issued the finding Aug. 22, 1967, against Hoffa after the Teamsters official and five codefendants contended the government had based its 1964 case on a wiretap of the telephone of S. George Burris of New York, one of the co-defendants.

McCarthy Asked If He Favors Demonstation Ban

CHICAGO (AP)—Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy was asked today if he wants to join two rivals in a move to ban floor demonstrations at the Democratic National Convention.

John M. Bailey, Democratic national chairman, sent McCarthy a telegram saying: "In view of the statements by Vice President Humphrey and Sen. McGovern urging no demonstrations for candidates nominated at the Chicago convention, I would like your recommendation on the matter."

The three men are contending for the Democratic presidential nomination at the convention opening Aug. 26 in the International Amphitheatre.

Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota sent Bailey a telegram Wednesday saying: "The sight of grown men and women cavorting around the convention floor is not in keeping with the serious business we are going to Chicago to consider."

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey suggested later that the convention spend "considerably less time on the frills and nonsense."

Whatever the final decision on trimming the show inside the hall, the atmosphere outside will be serious.

A mile-square area around the amphitheatre will be closed to virtually everyone but holders of convention credentials.

A spokesman for Chicago police said Thursday a tight security area will extend from Halsted Street at the eastern edge of the stockyards area to Ashland Avenue on the west, and from 39th Street to 47th Street.

Earlier, the police had planned a restricted zone four blocks long and two blocks wide in the area of the amphitheatre.

Democratic Chairman John M. Bailey was in Chicago Thursday inspecting preparations at the convention hall and said he was pleased.

Public Invited To Mental Health Association Session

An open meeting of the Tri-County Mental Health association will be held at 7:30 p.m. Aug. 19 at the First National Bank. Phillip Geissal, Jefferson City, executive director of the Missouri Association for Mental Health, will present a film entitled "Plan Ahead for Mental Health."

Bombing Debate May Undercut U.S. Stand

PARIS (AP) — Debate in Washington over Vietnam bombing policy seems to be undercutting the stand taken by the United States in the Paris peace talks against stopping the bombing without Communist de-escalation also.

The apparent contradiction of views has strengthened the impression of some diplomats here that the Washington debate may yet result in a decision to halt all attacks on North Vietnam.

Ambassador W. Averell Harriman and his delegation are trying, meanwhile, to get some indication from Hanoi that the summer lull in the fighting in the South is a Communist sign of de-escalation. Well-informed authorities say that so far they have had absolutely no success.

This failure to produce any word from Hanoi that the lull has a political motive has been registered in private contacts as well as formal sessions of the talks, it was said.

The contrast in arguments advanced by Harriman to Ambassador Xuan Thuy and the views expressed by some Washington policy makers stands out in a comparison of the U.S. position at the peace talks Wednesday and Thursday's news conference by Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford.

Harriman told Thuy that the United States had continued to bomb the southern part of North Vietnam after March 31 in order to reduce the infiltration of troops and supplies into South Vietnam. He based his defense of the bombing primarily on this point.

Clifford said that the North Vietnamese "have moved the men they chose to move" into the South over the last three years, and supplied them in spite of the bombing.

To offset losses due to bombing of the infiltration routes "they just move more men and more supplies," he said.

Recently, President Johnson said in a news conference that the bombing was knocking out 30 per cent of the North Vietnamese trucks going south. Secretary of State Dean Rusk about the same time said the United States would require assurances from Hanoi "directly or indirectly" about what would happen if the United States stops all the bombing.

The impression in Paris now is that the North Vietnamese are waiting to see how the Washington argument comes out, particularly in view of the uncertainties added by the U.S. domestic debate over politics.

Wallace Petitions List 61,839 Names

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Supporters of former Gov. George Wallace of Alabama presented petitions to Secy. of State James C. Kirkpatrick today to get Wallace on the ballot as a presidential candidate in Missouri.

Tom Turnispeed, national coordinator for Wallace, said the petitions contained 61,839 names — far more than the 17,896 which Kirkpatrick said were required.

Wallace fans, including pretty girls dressed in red, white and blue, crowded into Kirkpatrick's office for the brief ceremony.

Turnispeed said if the petitions are accepted and Wallace's name is certified in Missouri, he would be on the ballot in 40 states. Before the campaign is over, he said Wallace would be on the ballot in all 50 states.

Wallace will run in Missouri as the candidate of the American Party. A new party must be formally established under Missouri law before a third party candidate can get on the ballot.

Kirkpatrick said his first job will be to check the validity of the signatures with the help of local election officials wherever voter registration is required.

Kirkpatrick said there is no plan for a test suit. The Missouri Supreme Court ruled several years ago the secretary of state's task is purely ministerial and he is required to accept any such nominating petitions if the signatures are found to be valid.

Army to Close 23 Missile Batteries in 12 States

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon announced today the Army will shut down 23 antibomber missile batteries in 12 states to save money.

The action is the latest in a series of economy measures being taken by the Pentagon to cut fiscal 1969 spending by as much as $3 billion.

The Pentagon said deactivation of the 23 Nike-Hercules firing sites and seven headquarters installations will save $18.8 million in the current budget year, $54 million in succeeding years.

The Pentagon is expected to bear the brunt of a demand for spending reductions totaling $6 billion which the Congress made in return for passing President Johnson's 10 per cent income tax surcharge.

Closing the sites also will drop active Army strength by 4,200 men. Eight of the missile units are operated by the National Guard.

"After careful study, these sites, in 12 states, were found to contribute least to the effectiveness of the defense of the continental United States," the announcement said. "It was originally planned to close some of these sites by the summer of 1970."

The Nike-Hercules is a 39-foot missile capable of shooting down 2,000 mile-an-hour bombers.

The first batteries became operational only 10 years ago, but the entire air-defense system has been undergoing considerable streamlining in recent months.

The announcement said these sites would be closed:

Van Nuys and Newhall, Calif.; Lemont, Ill.; Munster, Ind.; Selfridge Air Force Base, Mich.; Irwin, Pa.; Edgemont, Pa.; Annapolis, Md.; Old Bridge and Hazlet, N.J.; Cromwell, Conn.

Marine, Hecker, and Grafton, Ill.; Pacific, Lawson, and Pleasant Hill, Mo.; Gardner and Ft. Leavenworth, Kan.; Denton, Terrell, Alvarado, and Camp Wolters, Tex.

The seven headquarters to be closed are at Saugus, Calif.; Tappan, N.Y.; Scott AFB, Ill, Pleasant Hill, Mo.; Olathe, Kan., and Duncanville, Tex. The latter has two headquarters installations.

The Pentagon said National Guard units at the air-defense sites in Missouri and Texas will be inactivated.

Technicians at the Missouri and Texas sites will be released and the military personnel will be transferred to other National Guard units.

Two double battery sites are being reduced to single batteries at Warington, Pa., and Ft. Tilden, N.Y.

Affected personnel in Maryland, Connecticut, Pennsylvania and Illinois are being transferred to other National Guard units.

The phase-outs are the second major economy move taken by the Army. Earlier, the Pentagon decided not to activate the 6th Infantry Division at Ft. Campbell, Ky., as originally planned, to save $125 million.

Last week the Navy made its initial financial cuts by ordering 50 ships into mothballs and closing down eight naval air squadrons.

Judge Forfeits $200 Of Bond In City Court

Judge Jim Sickal forfeited $200 of a $500 bond on John Gerald Francis, 426 rear East Gladys, for failure to appear Thursday night in City Court.

Sickal issued a warrant for Francis and ruled that if he is not located by next Friday, the remaining $300 of the bond will be forfeited.

Francis is charged with carrying a concealed weapon, displaying a dangerous weapon, assault and battery, destroying private property and threatening a person's life.

In other cases, a $56 bond held on Charles Hill, New Madrid, was forfeited for failure to appear and a warrant was issued for his arrest.

Frank Buxton, route three, Sikeston, was fined $15 on a charge of careless and imprudent driving.

Rita Bowman, 14 Green Meadows, Joe Lee Copeland, Bell City, and James Patton, 206 Felker, each were fined $17 on charges of careless and imprudent driving. Patton also was fined $20 on a charge of public intoxication.

Lester J. Bateman, Dunn Hotel, was fined $11 on a charge of no city auto license.

Roscoe Gray, route four, Sikeston, was fined $12 on a charge of public intoxication.

ARCHITECT'S DRAWING of a Ramada Inn to be built by April, 1969, in Sikeston. The site of the inn is at the northwest, quadrant at Interstate 55 and highway 60 at Miner. Initially, about 100 units, a restaurant, and a convention room are included in the plans. The architecture is Colonial Williamsburg. A swimming pool, courtyard and recreation area will be built.

Ramada Inn to Be Built at Miner I-55 - U. S. 60 Intersection

Plans for a Ramada Inn with 100 units to be constructed initially in Sikeston were announced today by Midamerica Hotels Corporation, with Charles L. Drury and Jerry M. Drury, both of Cape Girardeau, as stockholders.

The new motel, restaurant and convention facility will be completed by April of 1969. It will be on the northwest quadrant at Interstate 55 and U.S. 60 in Miner.

The M & M Grain Company site has been purchased along with eight acres from Joel Montgomery for an 11-acre site. The transaction was handled by the R. D. Clayton Realty Co.

Equipment of the M & M Grain will be sold Wednesday. Immediately afterward the building will be removed. Ground clearing is expected to begin Sept. 10, and construction Sept. 20.

Architecturally, Sikeston's new facility will follow a Colonial Williamsburg design prepared by Ramada's engineering and architectural staff.

The inn will be designed for approximately 200 rooms.

One hundred rooms will be built at once with a dining room and coffee shop with seating for 150. A meeting room with seating capacity for 325 will be constructed.

The restaurant will be attached to the main Inn building. Forty-one units are included in the main building, with approximately 60 other units to be attached.

The main building will have a lobby and interior corridors. The balance of the motel, which will be in the attached section, will have exterior entrances.

The Ramada Inn unit will have a playground area and swimming pool in the court yard.

Located adjacent to the Ramada Inn will be a major oil service station. Both are planned to be completed and open for business in April.

The franchise has been granted Midamerica by the Ramada Inn parent company, a nationwide chain of motels of Phoenix.

Ramada Inn is a growing chain concentrating on middle income families and commercial travelers. In six years, the chain has grown from 31 units to 186 of which more than 120 are franchised units.

Plans for developing 225 other units are underway. The inns are in 32 states, Washington, D.C., Mexico and Morocco.

Site work has been completed for the Ramada Inn of Cape Girardeau and construction will start soon. The Cape Girardeau Ramada Inn also will be owned and operated by Midamerica. A May, 1969 opening is planned for the Cape facility.

The M & M Grain Company, which has occupied the Miner site 25 years, will move to a new site one and one half miles north on Route A.

The company will maintain the farm chemical business, the seed business and the fertilizer business, Phil McGill, company president announced. M & M will curtail its grain and farm supply business.

Smoking Report Urges Stepped up Efforts to Combat Cigarette Use

WASHINGTON (AP)—A national task force today recommended stepped-up federal and private efforts to combat use of cigarettes and "stem the rising tide of early deaths and disabilities associated with smoking."

The report was immediately attacked by the Tobacco Institute as a "shockingly intemperate defamation of an industry which has led the way in medical research to seek answers in the cigarette controversy."

Among the recommendations of the task force report to the U.S. Surgeon general:

—Tighter restrictions on cigarette advertising and promotion.

—Better instruction in schools to influence youngsters to refrain from smoking.

—Greater antismoking efforts by doctors and other health professionals.

—Use of group approaches to prevent or reduce smoking.

—More insurance plans which give reduced rates to nonsmokers.

—Development and promotion of safer cigarettes.

The task force, which was appointed in 1967, said it is encouraged with early results of antismoking efforts.

It noted that cigarette consumption per capita declined sharply after the surgeon general's 1964 report on smoking and health, that it rose again in 1965 and 1966 and again is declining.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

If a man comes up to you in Great Britain and hands you a balloon, he may be a peddler -- or he may be a cop!

English police cars recently began carrying as standard equipment a supply of balloons attached to little tubes. Inside each baloon are a few yellow crystals and some weak acid. If a bobby suspects that a certain driver has had too many martunies, he can legally ask the motorist to blow up one of his baloons.

So what?

So, nothing, if you haven't been drinking. But if there is sufficient alcohol on your breath, it will turn the crystals green!

If this happens, you will be invited to join the nice policeman for a nice ride to the nice police station, where samples of your blood will be taken to determine to what degree you are intoxicated.

If the alcohol content of your blood is high enough to be in violation of the traffic laws, the judge must take away your license for a year. He may also fine you up to $280 or send you to jail for two months. If you are convicted of driving while intoxicated (DWI) a second time, the judge must jail you.

In this country, as well as in England, a major enforcement problem has arisen around the law prohibiting drunk driving. Tolerances of alcohol vary, and the vast majority of drunk drivers aren't arrested unless they have an accident.

The British balloon test is an effective way for the officer in a squad car to determine whether a person has had too much to drink, causing a safety hazard on the road. However, it can be argued that this is effective only for those drunks who are noticed, and that the punishment may be somewhat harsh.

Be that as it may, the National Safety Council estimates that drinking is a factor in more than half of all auto accidents.

Assuming that the average person does not want to drive when it is dangerous for him to do so, what's needed is a method by which he can determine his own driving ability after drinking. Perhaps the balloon - on a -tube -- sold to individuals -- is the answer.

The publisher of a prize - winning weekly says that a typical issue of his newspaper is composed of ninety per cent advertising.

"Fifty per cent is paid for by local merchants and forty per cent is contributed by the newspaper to community institutions," he said.

The publisher indicated that nearly all of his news stories and editorials involved the promotion of community welfare -- that is, stories on schools, libraries, government, civic clubs, churches, agriculture, industry, recognition of individuals, and countless charity drives.

Because of the amount of free publicity given to institutions it is sometimes difficult to understand why editors sometimes reject certain publicity as an effort to obtain free advertising.

In fact, it is sometimes difficult for an editor to make the distinction. A compromise is often the result. The construction of a new office building may be worthy of news coverage. But specific information on conditions of rentals should be the subject of paid advertising.

News stories and advertising are never a substitute for one or the other. The news story is controlled by the editor and contains only what he regards as being in the public interest.

Advertising is controlled by the private business. It contains specific details on buying conditions which leads to commercial action. Advertising may repeat information which is not acceptable in news coverage.

THE ENIGMA OF THE EXTREMIST NSA

An article appearing in the Washington Post, the morning newspaper here in the nation's Capital, reported a case of government subsidy of left - wing extremism.

The news story said "NSA (the National Student Association) is subsidized with about $600,000 a year from the Ford, Field and Rockefeller Foundations, the AFL- CIO, the Department of State and other well - heeled organizations."

Note that the article states that part of NSA's funds are received from the State Department, that department charged with the responsibility of conducting our foreign policy and carrying out the programs of our government in Southeast Asia - policies and programs which the student association has consistently opposed.

Over the past several years the activities of NSA have disturbed others, including concerned lawmakers in the Capital. For, despite its tax - exempt status, NSA has persistently participated in blatant political activities. During the past several years it has become increasingly critical of a strong American foreign policy especially in Southeast Asia.

NSA has passed resolution calling for the abolition of the House Committee on Un- American Activities, U. S. sponsorship of Red China's admission to the United Nations, and for a halt to U. S. bombing of North Viet Nam. This tax - exempt student association and recipient of funds from the State Department has also passed resolutions calling for the inclusion of the Viet Cong (the Communist National Liberation Front) in any negotiations for a ceasefire - and for an end to what the association describes as all U. S. "aggressive military action in Viet Nam."

NSA has passed resolutions opposing the Internal Security Act of 1950, and supporting the free (filthy) speech movement at the University of California at Berkeley. The student association has passed resolutions calling for an infinite number of other extremist positons.

NSA has consistently refused to stick to its charter, which specifically prohibits its participation in partisan political activity. It has refused to abide by the provisons of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, under which it obtained its tax exemption status.

That section of the Code allows tax exemptions for "corporations organized and operated exclusively for educational purposes, no substantial part of which is carrying on propaganda, or otherwise attempting to influence legislation, and which does not participate in . . . including the publishing or distributing of statements . . . any political campaing."

Nevertheless, NSA continues with its political activity, much of which is an effort to influence legislation before the Congress.

Many observers wonder how NSA gets away with trying to influence legislation while keeping its tax - exempt status - especially when one considers the fact that other organizations, which shall remain nameless, do not try to influence legislation but discover their tax - exempt status is subjected to constant Internal Revenue Service review, or revocation.

The National Review, that suave puncturer of puereaucratic pomposity and left - wing foolishness, has described NSA as "a twenty - year - old effrontery which is tax- exempt, and uses tax - free dollars and even government dollars, in order to make left - wing politics."

This bureaucratic selectivity of those who are in and those who are out, tax- wise, is due to one or all of three things: it is the democratic solution to a problem; the IRS is astigmatic; or youth must be served even if, as National Review so philosophically wrote, "it is galling to have to pay money to certify (NSA) contempt in which they hold their elders."

The enigma of NSA is that it continues on propagating its prejudices despite a thoughtful appraisal from a thoughtful conservative journal such as National Review and an actual newspaper account from none other than the port - polarized New York Times. It is interesting to see that NSA has been noticed by such diverse journals which, when not reporting world events and appraising them in their own way, take each other on before breakfast just to keep in polemical shape.

According to Henry Raymont, writing in the New York Times, May 23 of this year:

"The leadership of the largest American student organization has given . . . a bleak and discouraging account of political unrest and the prospects of the war in South Viet Nam.

"A report circulated by the National Student Association predicted that there would be no internal peace in South Viet Nam until the United Buddhist Church assumes an active role in a constitutional government. It scored the U. S. for continuing to support the military junta.

"It also urged that American policies, no matter how well - intentioned, had hopelessly alienated most of the civilian population, had created suspicions about the United States 'domination' and had generally failed to achieve meaningful goals in economic and social assistance.

"The 4,240 word document is a journal of a two - week visit to South Vietnam by Philip Sherburne, NSA president, and two other officers, Malcolm Kovacs and Gregory Delin.

"Mr. Sherburne, a 23-year-old graduate of the University of Oregon, disclosed . . . that the delegation had made the trip at the expense of the State Department."

Thus we see the State Department financing the travel of officers of NSA to South Viet Nam, young men who promptly return home to blast away at our country's foreign policy in that part of the world.

Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) — We all say we want the truth, but rarely do we want it put to us too plainly.

For the truth, like any other bitter medicine, is more palatable when sugar-coated.

That is why we so often have to resort, in communicating with one another, to doubletalk: It enables us to dole out conversational sugar to another person without disturbing him with reality.

The ability to use double-talk is the hallmark of maturity and adulthood. So is the ability to recognize double-talk — and not be fooled by it.

For the beginner, here are a few typical examples of doubletalk followed, in each case, by their literal translations:

"This job has unlimited opportunity."

—The pay is lousy.

"It's a lovely apartment. It even has a view of the river from the kitchen."

—But you have to stand on the stove to see it.

"All I want from you is your honest, unbiased opinion."

—If you don't agree with me, shut up.

"Frankly, I recommend our chicken a la king today—it's superlative."

—The chef cooked so much of it the day before yesterday we haven't been able to get rid of it.

"Your fiance must be awful rich, or crazy in love with you, to give you such a beautiful engagement ring."

—Poor thing, I'll bet she had to pay for it herself.

"It's not because I have four kids to clothe and feed that I'm asking for a merit raise—it's because I feel I deserve one."

—It's the four kids.

"That diet really has worked wonders for you. Since you took off those 20 pounds, your face looks a lot thinner."

—And twice as wrinkled.

"It's heartwarming to see a young fellow like you get ahead in the organization so fast."

—It's even more heartwarming to know that it's not my job you're after.

"Ha, ha, ha, ha, ha, ha, ha We can always count on you, boss, to come up with a new one."

—My old grandpappy used to like that joke, too, but it sounded funny when he told it.

"Don't stay up for me, honey. I'll probably have to work late at the office tonight."

—Unless my secretary has a date with another guy.

"Our profits dipped somewhat during the first half of the year because of a needed purchase of emergency supplies which I trust won't be duplicated."

—We had to buy a whale of a lot of red ink.

"I'll always remain your soul sister, Ronnie, but I'm afraid I must give you back your wax rose and amber beads."

—Since I found a boyfriend with a steady job, I don't want to be a hippie anymore.

"Much as I like to be of every possible service to a constituent, I find that in this case my hands are tied."

—This bum has got a real nerve. Asking for favors, and he didn't chip in a thin dime for my last campaign.

Washington - Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

DREW PEARSON SAYS: Two old friends of HHH run against him; Sen. George McGovern is Humphrey's old neighbor; auto manufacturers plan price increase on 1969 cars.

WASHINGTON -- Hubert Humphrey is a believer in competition. In fact he has trained and educated his competition. Sometimes, however, he wishes that the men he has trained wouldn't decide to compete with him just as he is reaching for life's biggest goal.

It was Humphrey, then mayor of Minneapolis and a founder of the Democratic farmer - labor party, who saw the political appeal of a young professor at St. Thomas College in St. Paul and helped him get elected to the house of representatives in 1948. Ten years later, Humphrey helped the young congressman get elected to the senate.

Today that young professor, Eugene McCarthy, is running against Humphrey for President.

In 1957 another young professor, this time from South Dakota, got elected to Congress and because he admired Humphrey, they both being natives of South Dakota, he asked Humphrey's advice about getting a house in Washington. Hubert recommended a modest neighborhood in Chevy Chase where prices were not too high.

So young congressman George McGovern took a mortgage on a house next door to Hubert's at Coquelin terrace.

At that time the hedge between the McGoverns' and the Humphreys' back yards was so low that you could step over it; so the Humphrey and McGovern children grew up together. There wasn't even a family row when the Humphrey Dachshund infiltrated the McGovern's yard to kill the McGovern children's pet easter rabbit.

Later, when the young congressman from South Dakota wanted to run for the senate, Humphrey persuaded Lt. Gov. Frank Lindley not to run in the Democratic primary against him. This was in 1962 after Sen. Francis Case died and there was an excellent chance of electing a Democrat. Thanks to Hubert, McGovern was nominated without Democratic opposition. Hubert held a fund - raising reception for him and also approached Mary Lasker, the Democratic angel in New York, to get some campaign funds for McGovern. McGovern was elected to the senate.

Today the ex-professor from Dakota Wesleyan University is running for President against his old neighbor.

"You work with a fellow for years," Hubert mused to a friend, "then, bingo, he runs against you. However, I'm not going to get mad about it."

WHAT MAKES GEORGIE RUN?

Out in California at the Democratic caucus last week, Pierre Salinger, former press secretary to President Kennedy, confided to friends that Kennedy family supporters were putting Sen. McGovern in the race because of the snide speech Eugene McCarthy had made as a eulogy to Bobby Kennedy. They were down on McCarthy, Salinger said.

Two weeks earlier, Sen. McGovern had been in California, conferring with speaker Jesse Unruh, leader of the Kennedy forces, who aspires to be Governor of California. McGovern was quoted as saying he probably could not support Hubert Humphrey.

Back in Washington McGovern came to see his old neighbor, the Vice President, said he had been misquoted.

A week later he was in Chicago at another meeting, also attended by speaker Unruh and Kennedy family supporters. They persuaded him to run. McGovern's will be a holding operation in the hope of tieing up the Democratic convention. If so, it's barely possible, though not probable, that the Kennedys can pick their own candidate.

HIGHER—PRICED CARS

It looks as if the auto industry is getting ready to follow the steel industry in bucking the White House for a price increase on 1969 cars.

The excuse will be added safety features, though actually the only safety features next year will be two head supports, to prevent neck injuries from rear-end collisions. The head supports will cost around $10. Despite this, government experts have word from Detroit that new car prices will be upped around $100.

Actually, increased auto profits and increased productivity should lead to decreased prices. However, all signs indicate that General Motors will increase prices across the board and that the others of the big three will follow.

Some people are wondering what happened to Sen. Abe Ribicoff's hearings which began last February with a demand that the Motor Moguls make public the details regarding the cost of safety devices. The Ribicoff hearings have not petered out into a plan whereby the auto industry gives cost data to the bureau of labor statistics which promptly treats them as if they were a military secret. Even the Highway Safety Bureau has not been able to get a look at these cost figures.

This is a strange anti - climax for senate hearings which began with such a flourish. However, the fact is that Ribicoff, an excellent senator, faces a tough relection battle in Connecticut. If he bucks the auto industry, it can send money into Connecticut to defeat him.

PAPA AGNEW

The original name of the GOP nominee for Vice President is Anagnostopoulos, which means "The son of a reader."

In Greece, a reader is a lay officer of the Greek Orthodox church. His job is to read to the congregation.

"Papa" Anagnostopoulos, Father of Spiro T. Agnew, the Governor of Maryland, was a restaurant owner in Baltimore, and exceptionally well educated for an immigrant. He was active in Ahepa, the American Hellenic Organization, where he wanted more scholarship and was one of the first to urge that Greek immigrants look upon the United States as a permanent home, not a temporary resting place.

"If we follow this path," said Papa Anagnostopoulos, "We will see the day when one of our descendants is in the White House."

How prophetic was Anagnostopoulos?

MEDITERRANEAN FLEET IN DANGER

Since the end of World War II the Mediterranean Sea and surrounding countries have been friendly to the U. S. Recently, however, the situation has been completely reversed. In 1956 Russia got a foothold in the Mediterranean by gaining influence over Egypt when the U. S. refused to finance the Aswan Dam on the Nile River. During the next 10 years the situation worsened as pro-Russian and anti-U.S. propaganda flowed through the Middle East. The main theme of this propaganda was that the U. S. was supporting Isreal against the well-being of the Arab nations.

The Israeli-Arab War of 1967 resulted in extreme hostality by many Arabs toward the U.S., Turkey now allows Soviet naval and supply ships to sail freely from the Black Sea into the Mediterranean. The Russian fleet there now is as large as the U. S. Fleet there, with a home port in Alexandria, Egypt. This is the first Russian Fleet ever to be based in the Mediterranean. Its presence gives rise to the question of whether or not the U. S. position there is imparied or totally lost.

'Mosloms are natural anti-Communists, and it was not easy for the Moslem world to be persuaded away from its traditionally friendly stance toward the U. S. and the free world. Moscow had to have a lot of help from our State Department to accomplish it.

If we can lose the friendship of the Moslem world and thus the Mediterranean Sea, will we next lose the friendship of the Asiatics and thus the Pacific Ocean? Events taking place in Vietnam and Korea at present may be a step in that direction. HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

REPUBLICAN THINK TANKS:

No Big City Black Revolt Against Nixon Ticket Reported Despite Southern Power at Convention.

New York: -- Here, a continent away from Dick Nixon's think tank, I went into the Negro community to dig the black reaction to the Republican nominees, whose power bedrock at the convention was the South.

In Washington, Ray Bliss' professionals at the Republican National Committee had barely unpacked their bags, when they went into secluded, moody and headachy meditation in their I-Street think tank.

Their problem: How to get that vital big city vote from the black populace, the labor people, and the ethnic groups, now that the impression is rampant that South Carolina's Strom Thurmond had been the power broker during the closed - door infighting.

Fact is, I found no black outcry. Jackie Robinson batted Dick Nixon around. But he's true - blue Rockefeller.

Strangely, the message from tough militants was calmer. The militant black leader, Roy Innis, National Director of the Congress of Racial Equlity (CORE), which can tie up a city quicker than you can say Jackie Robinson, laid it on the line:

"I'm not as horrified over the Agnew nomination as some people seem to be," Innis said, in that terse, staccato manner of his. "But I don't see that he's going to add anything.

"As for Dick Nixon, I hope that he understands that by black capitalism -- which he has been discussing-- we mean the acquisition of the instruments of black capitalism, the community - owned means of operating shops, factories, stores and industry. We're not just interested in creating 10 or 15 black capitalists. There's a big difference. But we'll see.

"CORE has proposed legislation which you and I have discussed before, and we'll see which candidate backs our version of black capitalism and industrial community ownership.

"We will encompass all types -- some individuals, some small partnerships, some cooperatives. What we want is a broad black industrialism, based on community action, ownership and management, in the hands of the blacks, all the blacks in the community."

Nor were there any sharper reactions from such men as the NAACP's Roy Wilkins. Wilkins criticized the Republican unemployment plank, saying it fails to recognize that the federal government will have to create the jobs that private industry so far has not been able to provide. He, too, will wait and see, and analyze and call a conference, and then let his followers in the big cities campaign as they see it.

From the labor people the reaction to the GOP ticket sprang from a conditioned reflex of two decades. It was not so much points South which disturbed the national labor leaders. It was the simple nomination of Dick Nixon and the points in the platform.

Gov. Agnew doesn't bother them. They're cynics. If Mr. Agnew, as a Republican, was a hero in labor circles when he was proselytizing for Nelson Rockefeller until last March, he's not automatically a bum because he's now with Dick Nixon.

As one high labor spokesman said of the plank:

'It hands us praise in the first paragraph and gives us the business in the rest of the statement."

It is tough. The labor plank demands tougher enforcement of the Taft - Hartley Law and the Landrum - Griffin Act. It urges strong legislation to handle national emergency strikes. It slaps at the White House for alleged "back door" pressure against employers during vital labor stoppages. In a few sentences it hits all of labor's sensitive nerve centers.

For example, it says that the GOP would "bar government - coerced strike settlements that cynically disregard the public interest and accelerate inflation."

This is not how the labor leaders see it. And when AFL-CIO president George Meany testifies in Chicago at about 10 a.m., August 22, before the Democratic Party platform committee, he'll sledgehammer the Republicans as only he can do it.

The public doesn't pay much attention to such nuances these circus days. But the labor movement's own press will.

Week after week, it will hammer at Messrs. Nixon and Agnew. These labor papers, with circulations in the millions, concentrated in the big cities and now middle - class suburbs, may have their effect.

The labor press, no doubt, will call it a "Southern conservative conspiracy" against working people.

Labor will be aiming at the "big city" vote, which these days is cast on both sides of the city line.

If the assault succeeds, and costs the Nixon - Agnew ticket a share of the megalopolises' ballots among blacks and whites, the Republicans will be hurt badly.

If not, if the Nixon - Agnew ticket gets its share of the black votes, the labor ballots the ethnic outpouring, the Republicans will win.

Just how accomplished is the first, perhaps for the moment the only order of the day in the GOP think tank.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

If a man comes up to you in Great Britain and hands you a balloon, he may be a peddler -- or he may be a cop!

English police cars recently began carrying as standard equipment a supply of balloons attached to little tubes. Inside each baloon are a few yellow crystals and some weak acid. If a bobby suspects that a certain driver has had too many martunies, he can legally ask the motorist to blow up one of his baloons.

So what?

So, nothing, if you haven't been drinking. But if there is sufficient alcohol on your breath, it will turn the crystals green!

If this happens, you will be invited to join the nice policeman for a nice ride to the nice police station, where samples of your blood will be taken to determine to what degree you are intoxicated.

If the alcohol content of your blood is high enough to be in violation of the traffic laws, the judge must take away your license for a year. He may also fine you up to $280 or send you to jail for two months. If you are convicted of driving while intoxicated (DWI) a second time, the judge must jail you.

In this country, as well as in England, a major enforcement problem has arisen around the law prohibiting drunk driving. Tolerances of alcohol vary, and the vast majority of drunk drivers aren't arrested unless they have an accident.

The British balloon test is an effective way for the officer in a squad car to determine whether a person has had too much to drink, causing a safety hazard on the road. However, it can be argued that this is effective only for those drunks who are noticed, and that the punishment may be somewhat harsh.

Be that as it may, the National Safety Council estimates that drinking is a factor in more than half of all auto accidents.

Assuming that the average person does not want to drive when it is dangerous for him to do so, what's needed is a method by which he can determine his own driving ability after drinking. Perhaps the balloon - on a -tube -- sold to individuals -- is the answer.

The publisher of a prize - winning weekly says that a typical issue of his newspaper is composed of ninety per cent advertising.

"Fifty per cent is paid for by local merchants and forty per cent is contributed by the newspaper to community institutions," he said.

The publisher indicated that nearly all of his news stories and editorials involved the promotion of community welfare -- that is, stories on schools, libraries, government, civic clubs, churches, agriculture, industry, recognition of individuals, and countless charity drives.

Because of the amount of free publicity given to institutions it is sometimes difficult to understand why editors sometimes reject certain publicity as an effort to obtain free advertising.

In fact, it is sometimes difficult for an editor to make the distinction. A compromise is often the result. The construction of a new office building may be worthy of news coverage. But specific information on conditions of rentals should be the subject of paid advertising.

News stories and advertising are never a substitute for one or the other. The news story is controlled by the editor and contains only what he regards as being in the public interest.

Advertising is controlled by the private business. It contains specific details on buying conditions which leads to commercial action. Advertising may repeat information which is not acceptable in news coverage.

THE ENIGMA OF THE EXTREMIST NSA

An article appearing in the Washington Post, the morning newspaper here in the nation's Capital, reported a case of government subsidy of left - wing extremism.

The news story said "NSA (the National Student Association) is subsidized with about $600,000 a year from the Ford, Field and Rockefeller Foundations, the AFL- CIO, the Department of State and other well - heeled organizations."

Note that the article states that part of NSA's funds are received from the State Department, that department charged with the responsibility of conducting our foreign policy and carrying out the programs of our government in Southeast Asia - policies and programs which the student association has consistently opposed.

Over the past several years the activities of NSA have disturbed others, including concerned lawmakers in the Capital. For, despite its tax - exempt status, NSA has persistently participated in blatant political activities. During the past several years it has become increasingly critical of a strong American foreign policy especially in Southeast Asia.

NSA has passed resolution calling for the abolition of the House Committee on Un- American Activities, U. S. sponsorship of Red China's admission to the United Nations, and for a halt to U. S. bombing of North Viet Nam. This tax - exempt student association and recipient of funds from the State Department has also passed resolutions calling for the inclusion of the Viet Cong (the Communist National Liberation Front) in any negotiations for a ceasefire - and for an end to what the association describes as all U. S. "aggressive military action in Viet Nam."

NSA has passed resolutions opposing the Internal Security Act of 1950, and supporting the free (filthy) speech movement at the University of California at Berkeley. The student association has passed resolutions calling for an infinite number of other extremist positons.

NSA has consistently refused to stick to its charter, which specifically prohibits its participation in partisan political activity. It has refused to abide by the provisons of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, under which it obtained its tax exemption status.

That section of the Code allows tax exemptions for "corporations organized and operated exclusively for educational purposes, no substantial part of which is carrying on propaganda, or otherwise attempting to influence legislation, and which does not participate in . . . including the publishing or distributing of statements . . . any political campaing."

Nevertheless, NSA continues with its political activity, much of which is an effort to influence legislation before the Congress.

Many observers wonder how NSA gets away with trying to influence legislation while keeping its tax - exempt status - especially when one considers the fact that other organizations, which shall remain nameless, do not try to influence legislation but discover their tax - exempt status is subjected to constant Internal Revenue Service review, or revocation.

The National Review, that suave puncturer of puereaucratic pomposity and left - wing foolishness, has described NSA as "a twenty - year - old effrontery which is tax- exempt, and uses tax - free dollars and even government dollars, in order to make left - wing politics."

This bureaucratic selectivity of those who are in and those who are out, tax- wise, is due to one or all of three things: it is the democratic solution to a problem; the IRS is astigmatic; or youth must be served even if, as National Review so philosophically wrote, "it is galling to have to pay money to certify (NSA) contempt in which they hold their elders."

The enigma of NSA is that it continues on propagating its prejudices despite a thoughtful appraisal from a thoughtful conservative journal such as National Review and an actual newspaper account from none other than the port - polarized New York Times. It is interesting to see that NSA has been noticed by such diverse journals which, when not reporting world events and appraising them in their own way, take each other on before breakfast just to keep in polemical shape.

According to Henry Raymont, writing in the New York Times, May 23 of this year:

"The leadership of the largest American student organization has given . . . a bleak and discouraging account of political unrest and the prospects of the war in South Viet Nam.

"A report circulated by the National Student Association predicted that there would be no internal peace in South Viet Nam until the United Buddhist Church assumes an active role in a constitutional government. It scored the U. S. for continuing to support the military junta.

"It also urged that American policies, no matter how well - intentioned, had hopelessly alienated most of the civilian population, had created suspicions about the United States 'domination' and had generally failed to achieve meaningful goals in economic and social assistance.

"The 4,240 word document is a journal of a two - week visit to South Vietnam by Philip Sherburne, NSA president, and two other officers, Malcolm Kovacs and Gregory Delin.

"Mr. Sherburne, a 23-year-old graduate of the University of Oregon, disclosed . . . that the delegation had made the trip at the expense of the State Department."

Thus we see the State Department financing the travel of officers of NSA to South Viet Nam, young men who promptly return home to blast away at our country's foreign policy in that part of the world.

NEW YORK (AP) — We all say we want the truth, but rarely do we want it put to us too plainly.

For the truth, like any other bitter medicine, is more palatable when sugar-coated.

That is why we so often have to resort, in communicating with one another, to doubletalk: It enables us to dole out conversational sugar to another person without disturbing him with reality.

The ability to use double-talk is the hallmark of maturity and adulthood. So is the ability to recognize double-talk — and not be fooled by it.

For the beginner, here are a few typical examples of doubletalk followed, in each case, by their literal translations:

"This job has unlimited opportunity."

—The pay is lousy.

"It's a lovely apartment. It even has a view of the river from the kitchen."

—But you have to stand on the stove to see it.

"All I want from you is your honest, unbiased opinion."

—If you don't agree with me, shut up.

"Frankly, I recommend our chicken a la king today—it's superlative."

—The chef cooked so much of it the day before yesterday we haven't been able to get rid of it.

"Your fiance must be awful rich, or crazy in love with you, to give you such a beautiful engagement ring."

—Poor thing, I'll bet she had to pay for it herself.

"It's not because I have four kids to clothe and feed that I'm asking for a merit raise—it's because I feel I deserve one."

—It's the four kids.

"That diet really has worked wonders for you. Since you took off those 20 pounds, your face looks a lot thinner."

—And twice as wrinkled.

"It's heartwarming to see a young fellow like you get ahead in the organization so fast."

—It's even more heartwarming to know that it's not my job you're after.

"Ha, ha, ha, ha, ha, ha, ha We can always count on you, boss, to come up with a new one."

—My old grandpappy used to like that joke, too, but it sounded funny when he told it.

"Don't stay up for me, honey. I'll probably have to work late at the office tonight."

—Unless my secretary has a date with another guy.

"Our profits dipped somewhat during the first half of the year because of a needed purchase of emergency supplies which I trust won't be duplicated."

—We had to buy a whale of a lot of red ink.

"I'll always remain your soul sister, Ronnie, but I'm afraid I must give you back your wax rose and amber beads."

—Since I found a boyfriend with a steady job, I don't want to be a hippie anymore.

"Much as I like to be of every possible service to a constituent, I find that in this case my hands are tied."

—This bum has got a real nerve. Asking for favors, and he didn't chip in a thin dime for my last campaign.

Washington - Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

DREW PEARSON SAYS: Two old friends of HHH run against him; Sen. George McGovern is Humphrey's old neighbor; auto manufacturers plan price increase on 1969 cars.

WASHINGTON -- Hubert Humphrey is a believer in competition. In fact he has trained and educated his competition. Sometimes, however, he wishes that the men he has trained wouldn't decide to compete with him just as he is reaching for life's biggest goal.

It was Humphrey, then mayor of Minneapolis and a founder of the Democratic farmer - labor party, who saw the political appeal of a young professor at St. Thomas College in St. Paul and helped him get elected to the house of representatives in 1948. Ten years later, Humphrey helped the young congressman get elected to the senate.

Today that young professor, Eugene McCarthy, is running against Humphrey for President.

In 1957 another young professor, this time from South Dakota, got elected to Congress and because he admired Humphrey, they both being natives of South Dakota, he asked Humphrey's advice about getting a house in Washington. Hubert recommended a modest neighborhood in Chevy Chase where prices were not too high.

So young congressman George McGovern took a mortgage on a house next door to Hubert's at Coquelin terrace.

At that time the hedge between the McGoverns' and the Humphreys' back yards was so low that you could step over it; so the Humphrey and McGovern children grew up together. There wasn't even a family row when the Humphrey Dachshund infiltrated the McGovern's yard to kill the McGovern children's pet easter rabbit.

Later, when the young congressman from South Dakota wanted to run for the senate, Humphrey persuaded Lt. Gov. Frank Lindley not to run in the Democratic primary against him. This was in 1962 after Sen. Francis Case died and there was an excellent chance of electing a Democrat. Thanks to Hubert, McGovern was nominated without Democratic opposition. Hubert held a fund - raising reception for him and also approached Mary Lasker, the Democratic angel in New York, to get some campaign funds for McGovern. McGovern was elected to the senate.

Today the ex-professor from Dakota Wesleyan University is running for President against his old neighbor.

"You work with a fellow for years," Hubert mused to a friend, "then, bingo, he runs against you. However, I'm not going to get mad about it."

WHAT MAKES GEORGIE RUN?

Out in California at the Democratic caucus last week, Pierre Salinger, former press secretary to President Kennedy, confided to friends that Kennedy family supporters were putting Sen. McGovern in the race because of the snide speech Eugene McCarthy had made as a eulogy to Bobby Kennedy. They were down on McCarthy, Salinger said.

Two weeks earlier, Sen. McGovern had been in California, conferring with speaker Jesse Unruh, leader of the Kennedy forces, who aspires to be Governor of California. McGovern was quoted as saying he probably could not support Hubert Humphrey.

Back in Washington McGovern came to see his old neighbor, the Vice President, said he had been misquoted.

A week later he was in Chicago at another meeting, also attended by speaker Unruh and Kennedy family supporters. They persuaded him to run. McGovern's will be a holding operation in the hope of tieing up the Democratic convention. If so, it's barely possible, though not probable, that the Kennedys can pick their own candidate.

HIGHER—PRICED CARS

It looks as if the auto industry is getting ready to follow the steel industry in bucking the White House for a price increase on 1969 cars.

The excuse will be added safety features, though actually the only safety features next year will be two head supports, to prevent neck injuries from rear-end collisions. The head supports will cost around $10. Despite this, government experts have word from Detroit that new car prices will be upped around $100.

Actually, increased auto profits and increased productivity should lead to decreased prices. However, all signs indicate that General Motors will increase prices across the board and that the others of the big three will follow.

Some people are wondering what happened to Sen. Abe Ribicoff's hearings which began last February with a demand that the Motor Moguls make public the details regarding the cost of safety devices. The Ribicoff hearings have not petered out into a plan whereby the auto industry gives cost data to the bureau of labor statistics which promptly treats them as if they were a military secret. Even the Highway Safety Bureau has not been able to get a look at these cost figures.

This is a strange anti - climax for senate hearings which began with such a flourish. However, the fact is that Ribicoff, an excellent senator, faces a tough relection battle in Connecticut. If he bucks the auto industry, it can send money into Connecticut to defeat him.

PAPA AGNEW

The original name of the GOP nominee for Vice President is Anagnostopoulos, which means "The son of a reader."

In Greece, a reader is a lay officer of the Greek Orthodox church. His job is to read to the congregation.

"Papa" Anagnostopoulos, Father of Spiro T. Agnew, the Governor of Maryland, was a restaurant owner in Baltimore, and exceptionally well educated for an immigrant. He was active in Ahepa, the American Hellenic Organization, where he wanted more scholarship and was one of the first to urge that Greek immigrants look upon the United States as a permanent home, not a temporary resting place.

"If we follow this path," said Papa Anagnostopoulos, "We will see the day when one of our descendants is in the White House."

How prophetic was Anagnostopoulos?

H.L. Hunt Says

MEDITERRANEAN FLEET IN DANGER

Since the end of World War II the Mediterranean Sea and surrounding countries have been friendly to the U. S. Recently, however, the situation has been completely reversed. In 1956 Russia got a foothold in the Mediterranean by gaining influence over Egypt when the U. S. refused to finance the Aswan Dam on the Nile River. During the next 10 years the situation worsened as pro-Russian and anti-U.S. propaganda flowed through the Middle East. The main theme of this propaganda was that the U. S. was supporting Isreal against the well-being of the Arab nations.

The Israeli-Arab War of 1967 resulted in extreme hostality by many Arabs toward the U.S., Turkey now allows Soviet naval and supply ships to sail freely from the Black Sea into the Mediterranean. The Russian fleet there now is as large as the U. S. Fleet there, with a home port in Alexandria, Egypt. This is the first Russian Fleet ever to be based in the Mediterranean. Its presence gives rise to the question of whether or not the U. S. position there is imparied or totally lost.

Mosloms are natural anti-Communists, and it was not easy for the Moslem world to be persuaded away from its traditionally friendly stance toward the U. S. and the free world. Moscow had to have a lot of help from our State Department to accomplish it.

If we can lose the friendship of the Moslem world and thus the Mediterranean Sea, will we next lose the friendship of the Asiatics and thus the Pacific Ocean? Events taking place in Vietnam and Korea at present may be a step in that direction. HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

REPUBLICAN THINK TANKS:

No Big City Black Revolt Against Nixon Ticket Reported Despite Southern Power at Convention.

New York: -- Here, a continent away from Dick Nixon's think tank, I went into the Negro community to dig the black reaction to the Republican nominees, whose power bedrock at the convention was the South.

In Washington, Ray Bliss' professionals at the Republican National Committee had barely unpacked their bags, when they went into secluded, moody and headachy meditation in their I-Street think tank.

Their problem: How to get that vital big city vote from the black populace, the labor people, and the ethnic groups, now that the impression is rampant that South Carolina's Strom Thurmond had been the power broker during the closed - door infighting.

Fact is, I found no black outcery. Jackie Robinson batted Dick Nixon around. But he's true - blue Rockefeller.

Strangely, the message from tough militants was calmer. The militant black leader, Roy Innis, National Director of the Congress of Racial Equlity (CORE), which can tie up a city quicker than you can say Jackie Robinson, laid it on the line:

"I'm not as horrified over the Agnew nomination as some people seem to be," Innis said, in that terse, staccato manner of his. "But I don't see that he's going to add anything.

"As for Dick Nixon, I hope that he understands that by black capitalism -- which he has been discussing-- we mean the acquisition of the instruments of black capitalism, the community - owned means of operating shops, factories, stores and industry. We're not just interested in creating 10 or 15 black capitalists. There's a big difference. But we'll see.

"CORE has proposed legislation which you and I have discussed before, and we'll see which candidate backs our version of black capitalism and industrial community ownership.

"We will encompass all types -- some individuals, some small partnerships, some cooperatives. What we want is a broad black industrialism, based on community action, ownership and management, in the hands of the blacks, all the blacks in the community."

Nor were there any sharper reactions from such men as the NAACP's Roy Wilkins. Wilkins criticized the Republican unemployment plank, saying it fails to recognize that the federal government will have to create the jobs that private industry so far has not been able to provide. He, too, will wait and see, and analyze and call a conference, and then let his followers in the big cities campaign as they see it.

From the labor people the reaction to the GOP ticket sprang from a conditioned reflex of two decades. It was not so much points South which disturbed the national labor leaders. It was the simple nomination of Dick Nixon and the points in the platform.

Gov. Agnew doesn't bother them. They're cynics. If Mr. Agnew, as a Republican, was a hero in labor circles when he was proselytizing for Nelson Rockefeller until last March, he's not automatically a bum because he's now with Dick Nixon.

As one high labor spokesman said of the plank:

'It hands us praise in the first paragraph and gives us the business in the rest of the statement."

It is tough. The labor plank demands tougher enforcement of the Taft - Hartley Law and the Landrum - Griffin Act. It urges strong legislation to handle national emergency strikes. It slaps at the White House for alleged "back door" pressure against employers during vital labor stoppages. In a few sentences it hits all of labor's sensitive nerve centers.

For example, it says that the GOP would "bar government - coerced strike settlements that cynically disregard the public interest and accelerate inflation."

This is not how the labor leaders see it. And when AFL-CIO president George Meany testifies in Chicago at about 10 a.m., August 22, before the Democratic Party platform committee, he'll sledgehammer the Republicans as only he can do it.

The public doesn't pay much attention to such nuances these circus days. But the labor movement's own press will.

Week after week, it will hammer at Messrs. Nixon and Agnew. These labor papers, with circulations in the millions, concentrated in the big cities and now middle - class suburbs, may have their effect.

The labor press, no doubt, will call it a "Southern conservative conspiracy" against working people.

Labor will be aiming at the "big city" vote, which these days is cast on both sides of the city line.

If the assault succeeds, and costs the Nixon - Agnew ticket a share of the megalopolises ballots among blacks and whites the Republicans will be hur badly.

If not, if the Nixon - Agnew ticket gets its share of the black votes, the labor ballots the ethnic outpouring, the Republicans will win.

Just how accomplished is the first, perhaps for the moment the only order of the day in the GOP think tank.

South Plains Title Assured for Texas Entry

UNDEFEATED and holding the edge in the south plains regional baseball tournament at VFW stadium, the Beaumont, Tex., sports pose after posting their second win of the tournament. Beaumont ran its tourney slate to 4-0 by trimming Sikeston two games last night 6-5 and 4-2. Kneeling, from left, are Steve Rumsey, Donald Berry, Russell Ball, John S. Kerr, Craig Pemberton, Byron Lord, Gregg Carpenter, Randy Markwardt and Raymond Walters. Standing, R. G. Walters, coach; Wayne Huglund, Scott Wise, Tom Crawford, David Bernsen, Roony Donahoe, Tommy Voss, Jay Temple, Douglas Ault, Ray McDermad, manager.

Sikeston, Mo., La Junta, Colo., and Ft. Worth were eliminated in yesterday's playoffs of the 1968 south plains regional Connie Mack baseball tournament at VFW stadium.

Potlatch went into yesterday's playoffs as one of the tourney's two undefeated teams but came out with two losses, both to Beaumont, Tex., 6-5 and 4-2. The Texans remained unbeaten.

It was the day of the hitters as 55 hits were collected, changing the pattern of the other eight games in which pitching and hitting dominated play.

Defense was also slack as 36 errors were recorded in the four contests.

It was a disastrous night for Sikeston and Manager N. P. McDaniel, who were the defending South Plains champions, having won the tourney at Lamar last year. They were forced into playing a double-header.

El Paso took the measure of La Junta, 7-5 in yesterday's opener and Grand Prairie, Tex., edged Ft. Worth 3-2 in eight innings.

The two winners met at 11 a.m. today to decide who will meet Beaumont in the 7 p.m. match tonight. A Beaumont loss would force this morning's winner to play Beaumont in a double header tonight.

Five runs battled in by Beaumont's second baseman, Tom Crawford, was the big thorn in the Foresters' side as they made their bid for Farmington, N. M., and the World Series.

Crawford lashed two hits and drove in three RBI's in the first contest. He continued his menace to the host in the second game by dropping in a double in the first inning to put his team on the scoreboard.

Rick Wilson took the loss in the opening game, having relieved Jim King.

Tim Halter put in his bid for three consecutive wins as he appeared on the mound for the Foresters in the second game after having won Tuesday and Wednesday nights.

It was the 27th victory of the year for Beaumont, which lost but one contest coming into the tourney.

Sylvan Rothschild hammered a 380-foot home run over the left field fence in yesterday's opener. His El Paso team posted a rally to trim La Junta 7-5 after it had taken a 4-0 lead in the first.

Rothschild's homer put El Paso withing one run of the leaders as one was aboard when he lofted the ball out of the park.

A run in the bottom of the eighth inning kept Grand Prairie alive after it had battled through four scoreless franses with Ft. Worth after having noticed the score in the third inning.

Brent Skillman advanced home on the infield hit of Steve Watkins after he had reached first on being hit by a pitched ball. He advanced to second on Bryon Williams' sacrifice.

Only three teams remain in the running for the 1968 title, all from Texas - Grand Prairie, El Paso and Beaumont.

CHARLIE DYE, holding glove and Roger McDaniel trot off the field Wednesday night after Sikeston Potlatch defeated Ft. Worth for the first time in eight years in the Connie Mack baseball tournament playoffs, Sikeston went 10 innings for a 3-2 victory.

St. Louis Back In Front By 14

By The Associated Press

The duel for the batting lead between Matty Alou and Pete Rose seems to be the last remnant of competition for a National League top position now that St. Louis has turned back the late challenge of the Chicago Cubs.

Only three points separate Alou and Rose today while the first-place Cardinals are 14 games in front of the runnerup Cubs.

Alou, 1966 NL batting king, cracked two hits in four tries Thursday night as the Pittsburgh Pirates blanked San Francisco 2-0 behind Steve Blass' four-hitter. The Cards walloped the Cubs 8-0 and Houston edged Philadelphia 3-2 in the only other National League games.

There was more action in the American League where Boston blanked Chicago 3-0, Baltimore split a doubleheader with Minnesota, winning the opener 4-3 and losing the nightcap, 2-1, Oakland downed the New York Yankees 4-3, and California beat Washington 3-1.

Alou's safeties raised his average to .330. Rose leads with .333 while another Cincinnati Red, Alex Johnson is third at .321.

San Francisco's Willie McCovey has a commanding lead in homers and runs batted in with 30 and 77, respectively, while Juan Marichal, another Giant is a solid frontrunner in most pitching victories with 21.

Alou triggered a two-run Pirate first inning that carried Blass to his 10th victory against five defeats. Matty singled and later scored on Donn Clendenon's one-bagger. The second run came home when third baseman Jim Hart erred on Manny Mota's grounder.

Blass was in trouble only in the third inning when Jay Alou, Matty's brother, singled and moved to second on Hal Lanier's single. However, Blass got losing pitcher Bob Bolin, 6-4, on a pop foul and fanned Bobby Bonds and Ron Hunt. The setback ended the Giants' fivegame winning streak.

Mike Shannon and Nelson Briles starred for the Cardinals. Shannon belted the first grand slam homer of his career and drove in another run with a single. Briles pitched a seven-hitter in recording his 16th triumph against seven losses.

Tourney Chatter

As the south plains regional moves into the fourth day of rugged action only three teams remain in the contention for the championship. The wear and tere is beginning to show on the pitching staffs of all baseball teams. Yesterday was the first day that there was not a shut out.

The host, Sikeston Potlatch, was in glory after defeating a tough crew from Ft. Worth Wednesday night. The Ft. Worth teams of the past six years have given Potlatch trouble in almost all regionals. Wednesday was the first time that a Sikeston team has defeated them. Their glory was short lived for in last night's games Sikeston took a double defeat from Beaumont, Tex., and was eliminated from the tournament.

Last year Sikeston won the regionals and went to the world series, finishing fifth. Sikeston had five players off last year's team back but could not put things together last night. Sikeston was the only team to return to the regional from the teams that were at Lamar, Colo., last year.

Hobbs William the coach of Grand Prairie, Tex., said that he thought the regional was more than just an success but also a great experience for him and all players. He commended the entire town for a warm welcome that has not worn off. He said that the people of Sikeston were the most warm hearted that he has ever met.

The people of Sikeston really made their presence known last night by filling the stands at VFW park fuller than any previous night. A larger crowd is expected tonight as the tournament moves nearer to finding a new champion to carry the South Plains colors to the world series in Farmington, N. M.

South Plains Title Assured for Texas Entry

UNDEFEATED and holding the edge in the south plains regional baseball tournament at VFW stadium, the Beaumont, Tex., sports pose after posting their second win of the tournament. Beaumont ran its tourney slate to 4-0 by trimming Sikeston two games last night 6-5 and 4-2. Kneeling, from left, are Steve Rumsey, Donald Berry, Russell Ball, John S. Kerr, Craig Pemberton, Byron Lord, Gregg Carpenter, Randy Markwardt and Raymond Walters. Standing, R. G. Walters, coach; Wayne Huglund, Scott Wise, Tom Crawford, David Bernsen, Roony Donahoe, Tommy Voss, Jay Temple, Douglas Ault, Ray McDermad, manager.

Sikeston, Mo., La Junta, Colo., and Ft. Worth were eliminated in yesterday's playoffs of the 1968 south plains regional Connie Mack baseball tournament at VFW stadium.

Potlatch went into yesterday's playoffs as one of the tourney's two undefeated teams but came out with two losses, both to Beaumont, Tex., 6-5 and 4-2. The Texans remained unbeaten.

It was the day of the hitters as 55 hits were collected, changing the pattern of the other eight games in which pitching and hitting dominated play.

Defense was also slack as 36 errors were recorded in the four contests.

It was a disastrous night for Sikeston and Manager N. P. McDaniel, who were the defending South Plains champions, having won the tourney at Lamar last year. They were forced into playing a double-header.

El Paso took the measure of La Junta, 7-5 in yesterday's opener and Grand Prairie, Tex., edged Ft. Worth 3-2 in eight innings.

The two winners met at 11 a.m. today to decide who will meet Beaumont in the 7 p.m. match tonight. A Beaumont loss would force this morning's winner to play Beaumont in a double header tonight.

Five runs battled in by Beaumont's second baseman, Tom Crawford, was the big thorn in the Foresters' side as they made their bid for Farmington, N. M., and the World Series.

Crawford lashed two hits and drove in three RBI's in the first contest. He continued his menace to the host in the second game by dropping in a double in the first inning to put his team on the scoreboard.

Rick Wilson took the loss in the opening game, having relieved Jim King.

Tim Halter put in his bid for three consecutive wins as he appeared on the mound for the Foresters in the second game after having won Tuesday and Wednesday nights.

It was the 27th victory of the year for Beaumont, which lost but one contest coming into the tourney.

Sylvan Rothschild hammered a 380-foot home run over the left field fence in yesterday's opener. His El Paso team posted a rally to trim La Junta 7-5 after it had taken a 4-0 lead in the first.

Rothschild's homer put El Paso withing one run of the leaders as one was aboard when he lofted the ball out of the park.

A run in the bottom of the eighth inning kept Grand Prairie alive after it had battled through four scoreless franses with Ft. Worth after having noticed the score in the third inning.

Brent Skillman advanced home on the infield hit of Steve Watkins after he had reached first on being hit by a pitched ball. He advanced to second on Bryon Williams' sacrifice.

Only three teams remain in the running for the 1968 title, all from Texas - Grand Prairie, El Paso and Beaumont.

CHARLIE DYE, holding glove and Roger McDaniel trot off the field Wednesday night after Sikeston Potlatch defeated Ft. Worth for the first time in eight years in the Connie Mack baseball tournament playoffs, Sikeston went 10 innings for a 3-2 victory.

St. Louis Back In Front By 14

By The Associated Press

The duel for the batting lead between Matty Alou and Pete Rose seems to be the last remnant of competition for a National League top position now that St. Louis has turned back the late challenge of the Chicago Cubs.

Only three points separate Alou and Rose today while the first-place Cardinals are 14 games in front of the runnerup Cubs.

Alou, 1966 NL batting king, cracked two hits in four tries Thursday night as the Pittsburgh Pirates blanked San Francisco 2-0 behind Steve Blass' four-hitter. The Cards walloped the Cubs 8-0 and Houston edged Philadelphia 3-2 in the only other National League games.

There was more action in the American League where Boston blanked Chicago 3-0, Baltimore split a doubleheader with Minnesota, winning the opener 4-3 and losing the nightcap, 2-1, Oakland downed the New York Yankees 4-3, and California beat Washington 3-1.

Alou's safeties raised his average to .330. Rose leads with .333 while another Cincinnati Red, Alex Johnson is third at .321.

San Francisco's Willie McCovey has a commanding lead in homers and runs batted in with 30 and 77, respectively, while Juan Marichal, another Giant is a solid frontrunner in most pitching victories with 21.

Alou triggered a two-run Pirate first inning that carried Blass to his 10th victory against five defeats. Matty singled and later scored on Donn Clendenon's one-bagger. The second run came home when third baseman Jim Hart erred on Manny Mota's grounder.

Blass was in trouble only in the third inning when Jay Alou, Matty's brother, singled and moved to second on Hal Lanier's single. However, Blass got losing pitcher Bob Bolin, 6-4, on a pop foul and fanned Bobby Bonds and Ron Hunt. The setback ended the Giants' fivegame winning streak.

Mike Shannon and Nelson Briles starred for the Cardinals. Shannon belted the first grand slam homer of his career and drove in another run with a single. Briles pitched a seven-hitter in recording his 16th triumph against seven losses.

Malden Schools Open Aug. 26

MALDEN -- The 1968-69 school year will open Aug. 26, with enrollment for freshmen and sophomores; juniors and seniors will enroll on Tuesday; Wednesday will be devoted to a teachers meeting; Thursday will be student orientation day, buses will run and students will be returned home for lunch; the first regular day of school will be Friday, Aug. 30.

Buses will transport students residing more than one-half mile from the school. Buses will not stop inside this limit to pick up or discharge passengers.

The board of education on Aug. 12, voted to have a closed campus this year. This means that students will not be permitted to leave the school grounds during the noon period unless they are picked up and returned by their parents.

The board said that this is being done for the safety of the school child and to provide a better balanced educational program for the children.

Bids on milk were received from four dairies. All were the same price, six cents per half-pint. The contract was awarded to Foremost Dairy for the 1968-69 school year.

The basement of the old elementary school building will be remodeled and used this year as a kindergarten. The kindergarten for the past two and one - half years has been at the Airport. Enrollment for kindergarten will be held Aug. 20, in the high school cafeteria.

Sikeston Schools Equipped to Locate Child's Handicaps and Overcome Them

By BARBARA LACY

Does your child dislike school? Is he unable to understand directions; unable to concentrate as long as others his age do?

Do you shun his problems off by saying, "I never could do arithmetic, that's why Johnny can't" or "He inherited my dislike for reading"?

If your Johnny is having trouble in school he may be one of the 20 per cent of Sikeston children who have a special learning problem; a problem that until recently wasn't diagnosable or treatable. True, it might be a problem that you had in school, but today, with trained personnel and electronic equipment, most Johnnys can learn to overcome learning disabilities.

How? That's what the special service teachers in the Sikeston school system are discovering this week at a first-of-its-kind workshop in Sikeston. Attending the five-day workshop at the regional diagnostic clinic, are remedial reading teachers, special education teachers, speech clinicians, guidance counselors, school nurses, social workers and teachers and other staff members from the clinic.

The cooperative venture between the school system and the Clinic is under the direction of Wade Bedwell, assistant director of elementary education in charge of special services and kindergarten, and a psychologist at the clinic. The 13 educators attending the workshop will learn how to use the new materials and machines purchased for the school system as well as how to use other resources in the Sikeston area now available to the school, such as hospital tests for children with suspected brain damage.

"Some children overcome their problems without help," Bedwell explained. "Others can't overcome them and get farther and farther behind until they drop out."

What are their problems?

A great majority center around the senses;" Bedwell said, "seeing and learning. A child may be able to see, but he doesn't see what the rest of us do, he may see upside down or backwards. Others can read but can't understand spoken directions. Some have great difficulty working arithmetic problems, that is, they can't visualize abstract concepts.

Some with speech defects don't realize that there is anything wrong with the way that they talk, or their speech problems stem from bad habits at home or baby talk.

"These children are not deaf of blind or mentally defective. They have what we call a learning disability which refers to a specific disorder of one or more of the processes of speech, language, perception, behavior, reading, spelling or arithmetic.

Bedwell emphasized the work specific. "It implies," he said, "that the child has many assets but that he also has a specific problem in one or more areas. The term learning disability suggests also that the disability is related to education and the communications processes.

"There is a wide range of possible disorders, some that are just being discovered. With our new techniques and machines we are discovering problems that even medical doctors didn't know existed.

One disorder may be basic to another. For instance, a reading disability may have at it's base, a preception disorder which accounts for the child's inability to read.

Children with perceptual disorders have normal sensual abilities but do not perceive or recognize accurately in one or more of their senses. A child, who is unable to say which finger has been touched but who knows that one of his fingers has been touched, is an example. A another child might be able to hear sounds but be unable to recognize them. Other children cannot recognize the names of his classmates until he hears their voices.

The diagnosis of a learning disability begins with an evaluation of the intellectual sensory and personality characteristics of the child to determine his development potential. Since, in many cases, it is difficult to determine whether there is a brain damage except by inference from the child's behavior, the psychological examiner is interested chiefly in the behavioral deficits rather than the location or extent of the brain damage.

The diagnostician determines the child's development potentential as well as the discrepency between his capacity and his achievement. By analyzing the child's learning processes and locating related or correlated disabilities he is able to form a hypothesis and recommend a treatment program to remove the disorder and raise the child's achievement level.

This is a new and expensive program Bedwells said. Some children slip by, it may be a year or two before we find them. But we are trying to get to them as young as possible. The Sikeston school system has the personnel and equipment to treat them.

This year three sound proof rooms have been installed in Southeast Elementary to test children in speech and hearing. A clinical audiometer to test children has been purchased. The school hopes to have remedial reading teachers in elementary schools.

It costs $5,000 to equip one classroom with the proper machine to diagnose and treat the handicapped child.

There are tests that determine the child's visual coordination, machines that photograph the child's eye movements, tests and machines that tell what is wrong with the child.

There are exercises and machines that will correct the child's problems. "For instance, we will have three teams of physical education and music teachers in the elementary schools to develop coordination in all the students," Bedwell said. "They will work together, on the gross and fine motor movements, to develop physical coordination of the large and small muscles as well as develop music appreciation.

"For the children that fall all over them selves, they will have special exercises to do several times a week.

"Our reading coordinator will work with the students and with the teachers, suggesting special helps for students.

"For the students who don't seem to the responding to corrective exercises and programs, we will refer them for further evaluations. Perhaps there is something emotionally wrong.

"Our approach to the great majority of children with learning disorders will be to appeal to the senses, with electronic equipment. These are reading machines equiped with earphones. The child will hear words and see them at the same time. These machines can be programed to work many ways and thus can be used to treat a wide variety of disorders.

"Just seeing what they are hearing helps many children with visual and hearing disorders. Children who can't distinguish between sounds can learn phonics by hearing and seeing two related words and through repitation learn the differences. A child's memory may be increased by flashing number sequences on the scene of increasing complexity, or by saying sentences of increasing length to the child for him to repeat.

"We have a lot of methods to increase the childs eye span; one of them is for the machine to flash on its screen phrases of increasing length.

"We are using a team approach. We will call in anyone we think can help the child. And to make the correct diagnosis, we need more than one specialists opinion.

"The important thing is, we are trying to get away from classifying a child as mentally retarded or just stupid. We want every child to work up to his potential. If we can find what is wrong, he'll enjoy school."

Prague: Modern People In A Medieval Setting

By BOB COCHNAR
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—On a midsummer's night in Prague, when only the clickity-clicks of a passing tram and the tinny wail of "Mrs. Robinson" from a transistor radio remind the visitor of the 20th century, the atmosphere at the Charles Bridge is positively medieval.

The baroque immensity of Hradcany Castle—now the seat of government—looms above the old sector, guarded by the Gothic spires of churches and the jagged escarpments which have seen centuries of wars and occupations.

Prague is a city caught between the sleepy comfort of an age long dead and the stridency of contemporary life. And the recent liberal movement has sharply etched the dichotomy.

At first light, the medievalism vanishes. The streets crowd with cars, trolleys and people. The Vltava River, about which Smetana wrote such intensely nationalistic music, bustles with barges and the occasional punt of a tourist or worker on his day off.

The citizens of Prague are intensely aware of history and delight in directing the visitor to one or more of the houses where the writer Franz Kafka lived, now that Kafka is an "approved" person. They also point, with some amusement, to the great pedestal from which a stone Stalin once peered disapprovingly. The statue was toppled several years ago when Stalin became a "nonperson."

Unlike the Slovaks who occupy the eastern area of Czechoslovakia, the Czechs of Prague consider themselves tied to Western Europe's cultural traditions. To the Czechs, most Slovaks are little better than Russians and Russians, of course, are barbarians.

That's why the bookstores are filled with inexpensive paperbacks (popular American authors: Hemingway, Fitzgerald, Baldwin, Styron and, curiously, Norman Mailer) and superb classical records which can be purchased for as little at $2.

At the same time, scarce consumer goods are almost beyond the reach of the average worker. But performances at the magnificent baroque opera house play to SRO audiences.

Starchy hotels offer rock 'n' roll music nightly and poetry readings are regular happenings in the many wine houses. "Laterna Magica," the unique sound-light-film-people show which made a spash at the Czechoslovakian Pavilion of Expo '67, still packs them in at its permanent home just off Wenceslaus Square.

And, of course, there's the movies. Barandov Studios, located in the hills above Prague, has been turning out first-class films since the '20s, although Americans weren't really aware of this until "The Shop on Main Street" won an Academy Award in 1967.

American actor Bradford Dillman, on location in Prague for "The Bridge at Remagen," the first American film to be made in Czechoslovakia (by David Wolper for United Artists, says that Czech technicians "do amazing things on ridiculously small budgets. Our film, to the Czechs, is a superspectacle but they know their jobs well."

By Hollywood standards, the equipment at Barandov is out of date, but this hasn't stopped the studio from producing such superlative films as "Closely Watched Trains" and "The Shop on Main Street."

In all, even a once-oppressive Communist regime couldn't stop Czechs from expressing themselves in the arts. Abstract art, widely condemned elsewhere in East Europe, has been flourishing for years, "Socialist realism" receives snickers from discerning Czechs.

And now that Alexandre Dubcek, the Communist party chief, seems to be succeeding in his programs of "democratic socialism," much to the dismay of the Russians, the gates of culture are swinging wide open.

Press censorship has been lifted and, for the first time since 1948, writers have been able to say what they think. "All this freedom is a bit euphoric," a journalist confessed. "You have to understand that it takes some time to become adjusted to the fact that one can criticize without being clapped in jail."

The liberalization, one writer argues, was just a matter of time. "After all," he says," we live too close to West Germany and Austria. We know what is happening there and we know it could happen here as well. And now, finally, it may very well happen."

Still, the Czechs can poke fun at the loosening. Author Pavel Kohout, with tongue in cheek, suggests that eventually "The Central Administration of Publications will see to it with firmness that the newspapers and publishers print every manuscript in turn, according to when it is received."

He adds. "I do not dare to foresee what the next developments will be, but one thing must be admitted by even the worst pessimist: A great time lies ahead for us all—unless something else bars our way again.")

PLASTER MONUMENT to Ernesto (Che) Guevara, the Communist guerrilla chief who was killed by Bolivian troops last October, is admired by a youngster in a Santiago, Chile, park. The bust is the work of three leftist sculptors.

GEARED to modern living, these units will go into hydraulic transmissions for boats, where they reportedly provide better operating control by enabling the skipper to shift from forward to reverse without passing in neutral.

STEEL/1967
WORLD PRODUCTION

WORLD OUTPUT—546 Million Tons

The United States is still the world's leading steel producer but the Soviet Union and the six-nation European Common Market are pulling closer. Japan, which showed the sharpest rise in output in 1967—from 53 million tons to 69 million, is the leading exporter, shipping 4.5 million tons of steel products to the United States alone.

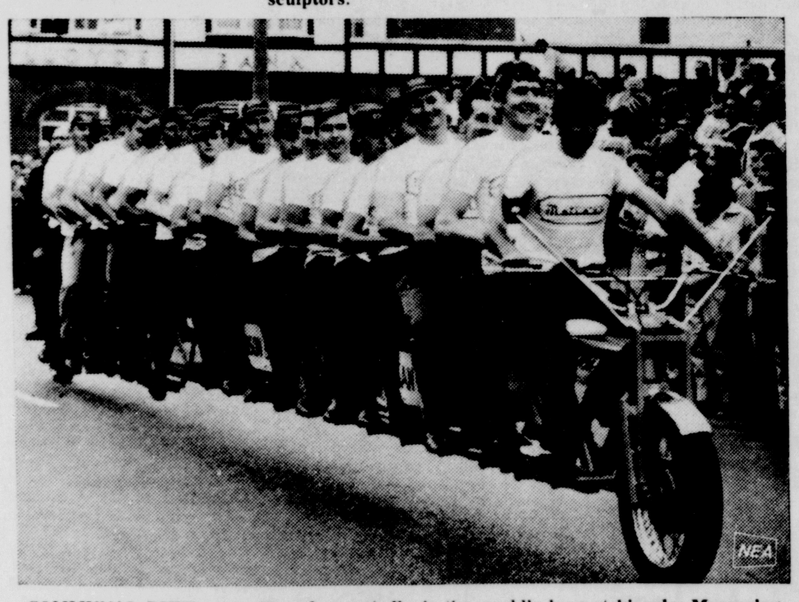

QUICK QUIZ

Q—When did the U.S. Army adopt olive drab uniforms?

A—Traditional blue uniforms were discarded in favor of olive drab in 1902. Experience during the Spanish-American War had taught that blue is decidedly too good a target.

Q—How can leap years be determined?

A—Any year the number of which is divisible by four is a leap year, excepting century years, which must be divisible by 400. The year 1968 is a leap year.

COMMUNAL BIKE seats 20 and reportedly is the world's longest bicycle. Measuring more than 35 feet long, its weight exceeds two tons when fully loaded. Power comes from pedals pumped by rear eight riders. It is seen here in England.

REAL SMALL, only eight inches high, this 7-day-old baby hippo looks larger until you realize its mother is a pigmy. The baby was born at an Australian zoo in Sydney.

School Fashions Have Flair

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—There's gaiety and variety in school fashions this fall.

School girls are more fashion-conscious than they once were and much of the credit for this change goes to young mothers who are aware of fashion news—who have been wearing short hemlines and belted waists themselves.

There are coats for every occasion, dress-up coats for weekend and party wear as well as classic and contemporary styles for sports and every-day sojourns to school. Individuality and variety of shape with more fit and flare and interesting detail has been inspired and encouraged by the National Board of the Coat and Suit Industry. There are side-button closings in addition to single-and double-breasted ones. Belts accent the waistline and half belts hold back fullness, inverted pleats or panels.

Leather trimmings, metal buttons, wider lapels and fur or fur fabric collars are in the picture. And pile or quilted nylon linings give both smartness and warmth.

No fashion is newer or more wanted by college girls than the Nehru jacket. The example (left), complete with silver chain, comes in three pieces—jacket, skirt and pants. Smart shetland wool coat (right) is neatly tailored with concealed side closing, wide self-belt and Peter Pan collar. These designs were chosen by the National Board of the Coat and Suit Industry for fall promotion.

The big fashion story is fabric which determines the style. New fabrics come in lush depths of texture and color. There are handsome tweeds, gabardines, fleeces, diagonal- and ottoman ribbed monotones, Shetlands, fur-like fabrics, plaids and tartans. Melton, corduroy, heavy duck and leatherlike fabric adapt to the many sport and casual styles.

Colors are rich—brown tones, grays, dark greens and navy are most popular with red, burgundy, electric blue and camel running a close race.

Individuality and diversity are typical of the styles for 1968 and there are designs, fabrics and colors to suit the taste of every school and college girl.

Prague: Modern People In A Medieval Setting

By BOB COCHNAR
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—On a midsummer's night in Prague, when only the clickity-clicks of a passing tram and the tinny wail of "Mrs. Robinson" from a transistor radio remind the visitor of the 20th century, the atmosphere at the Charles Bridge is positively medieval.

The baroque immensity of Hradcany Castle—now the seat of government—looms above the old sector, guarded by the Gothic spires of churches and the jagged escarpments which have seen centuries of wars and occupations.

Prague is a city caught between the sleepy comfort of an age long dead and the stridency of contemporary life. And the recent liberal movement has sharply etched the dichotomy.

At first light, the medievalism vanishes. The streets crowd with cars, trolleys and people. The Vltava River, about which Smetana wrote such intensely nationalistic music, bustles with barges and the occasional punt of a tourist or worker on his day off.

The citizens of Prague are intensely aware of history and delight in directing the visitor to one or more of the houses where the writer Franz Kafka lived, now that Kafka is an "approved" person. They also point, with some amusement, to the great pedestal from which a stone Stalin once peered disapprovingly. The statue was toppled several years ago when Stalin became a "nonperson."

Unlike the Slovaks who occupy the eastern area of Czechoslovakia, the Czechs of Prague consider themselves tied to Western Europe's cultural traditions. To the Czechs, most Slovaks are little better than Russians and Russians, of course, are barbarians.

That's why the bookstores are filled with inexpensive paperbacks (popular American authors: Hemingway, Fitzgerald, Baldwin, Styron and, curiously, Norman Mailer) and superb classical records which can be purchased for as little at $2.

At the same time, scarce consumer goods are almost beyond the reach of the average worker. But performances at the magnificent baroque opera house play to SRO audiences.

Starchy hotels offer rock 'n' roll music nightly and poetry readings are regular happenings in the many wine houses. "Laterna Magica," the unique sound-light-film-people show which made a spash at the Czechoslovakian Pavilion of Expo '67, still packs them in at its permanent home just off Wenceslaus Square.

And, of course, there's the movies. Barandov Studios, located in the hills above Prague, has been turning out first-class films since the '20s, although Americans weren't really aware of this until "The Shop on Main Street" won an Academy Award in 1967.

American actor Bradford Dillman, on location in Prague for "The Bridge at Remagen," the first American film to be made in Czechoslovakia (by David Wolper for United Artists, says that Czech technicians "do amazing things on ridiculously small budgets. Our film, to the Czechs, is a superspectacle but they know their jobs well."

By Hollywood standards, the equipment at Barandov is out of date, but this hasn't stopped the studio from producing such superlative films as "Closely Watched Trains" and "The Shop on Main Street."

In all, even a once-oppressive Communist regime couldn't stop Czechs from expressing themselves in the arts. Abstract art, widely condemned elsewhere in East Europe, has been flourishing for years, "Socialist realism" receives snickers from discerning Czechs.

And now that Alexandre Dubcek, the Communist party chief, seems to be succeeding in his programs of "democratic socialism," much to the dismay of the Russians, the gates of culture are swinging wide open.

Press censorship has been lifted and, for the first time since 1948, writers have been able to say what they think. "All this freedom is a bit euphoric," a journalist confessed. "You have to understand that it takes some time to become adjusted to the fact that one can criticize without being clapped in jail."

The liberalization, one writer argues, was just a matter of time. "After all," he says," we live too close to West Germany and Austria. We know what is happening there and we know it could happen here as well. And now, finally, it may very well happen."

Still, the Czechs can poke fun at the loosening. Author Pavel Kohout, with tongue in cheek, suggests that eventually "The Central Administration of Publications will see to it with firmness that the newspapers and publishers print every manuscript in turn, according to when it is received."

He adds. "I do not dare to foresee what the next developments will be, but one thing must be admitted by even the worst pessimist: A great time lies ahead for us all—unless something else bars our way again.")

SHIRT-SLEEVE diplomacy in the Philippines. Michigan's former governor, G. Mennen Williams, wears a native shirt made of pineapple fiber in his role as newly appointed ambassador to the islands.

CONTEMPORARY COMMUNIST sentries guard the gates of Prague's presidential palace beneath mythological statues that have been standing guard since the golden age of the kings of Bohemia. The city's medieval past is never far from sight in the Czechoslovakian capital.

If You Were the Judge

Court Upholds Right of Man to Silence Friend

By Jack Strauss, LL. B.

Nicely Nelson found himself in more trouble than a fox surrounded by a pack of hound dogs. The F.B.I. was checking on him and before long he was afraid they might have him in check-mate because of his suspected unsavory activities.

To counter the investigation, Nicely warned his friend Horace that it would be a grave mistake if he didn't keep his mouth shut. More concerned with the state of his health than answering F.B.I. questions, Horace heeded the warning.

The result: Nicely was arrested and charged with violating a law that made it a crime to interfere with the "administration of justice."

"Nicely reduced Horace to a state of silence more effectively," the judge was told, "then a pack of sleeping pills."

"I wasn't interfering with the administration of justice," Nicely protested in his own defense. "All I did was to suggest that Horace not talk to the F.B.I. in any case, Besides, the F.B.I. doesn't administer justice. If anything, they dispense with it."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you convict Nicely Nelson of interfering with the administration of justice?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that Nicely hadn't interfered with the "administration of justice" since the F.B.I. is an investigating rather than a judicial arm of the government and does not administer justice.

The Prayer
from
The Upper Room

The publican, standing afar off, would not lift up so much as his eyes unto heaven, but smote upon his breast, saying, God be merciful to me a sinner. (Luke 18:13)

PRAYER: Hear our prayer, O Lord. Supply our needs this day. May we become as little children in Your sight. Forgive us our sins, and we shall never cease to praise Your name. Amen.

There are about 800,000 head of cattle in the world, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

BEDFORD, Mass. (AP) An electronic automatic bus identification system that can summon police, maintenance or supervisory assistance, as well as improve efficiency, was introduced here by Sylvania Electric Products Inc.

The system features a solid-state FM receiver than can be mounted on utility poles or buildings along bus routes. Each bus in a fleet would be equipped with a tiny FM transmitter which could send out a special identification signal continuously.

As the bus comes within 50 feet of a receiver, its signal is picked up and transmitted to a central computer location where it is available to dispatchers.

The part of the system that calls police, maintenance or supervisors is an "emergency beacon" and is an optional feature.

Ann Landers

Teen Ager Lambasts Crew Cuts

Dear Ann Landers: I used to think you were a friend of us teens but now I know you are our enemy. I didn't mind when you put the knock on long hair for boys, most square middle-aged people feel the same way. But when you said you hoped the crew cut would come back because it is clean looking, I almost popped a blood vessel.

The crew cut is the most repulsive looking hairstyle ever created. It makes a guy look like he is ready for the electric chair. It is dumb to chop off a fellow's hair and make him look bald. Baldness comes soon enough.

Anybody who would come out in favor of the crew cut is probably wearing highbutton shoes and using a marcel iron. Why don't you retire, Annie? You are too old for the job. -- CHICKEN

Dear Chicken: To each his own, bub. I still like the crew cut. Shame on you for trying to put an old lady out on the street. You get five raps across the knuckles with my marcel iron!

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is in the drug business. He has been taking just about every kind of pill you can think of for 20 years. At first it was pep pills to help him through the long hours. Then he had to take tranquilizers to calm his humpy nerves. Next it was sleeping pills. Now he has to take pills to get him moving in the morning. Since he is in the business he can lay his hands on all the pills he wants.

We have been married for 23 years. Our sex life is terrible. Most of the time he is impotent. I am sure the pills are to blame. When I try to explain this to him he gets mad and says, "The REAL reason we have such a lousy love life is because you don't have any sex appeal anymore."

Pills have ruined our marriage and killed my love for my husband. Please, Ann, tell your readers to stay away from them. -- NO CITY PLEASE

Dear No: Indiscriminate use of pills can be extremely dangerous, and I have repeatedly warned my readers about this. In your husband's case the pills have apparently taken their toll. Pills often mask symptons of emotional illness and deceive a user into believing he is O.K. I hope your husband will go to a physician and level with him before he suffers a complete collapse.

Dear Ann Landers: I work for a high-powered businessman who has many peculiarities but I am willing to overlook his oddities because I love my job, the pay is excellent and I keep meeting so many interesting people through this work. I would hate to leave.

The thing that bothers me most is that my boss used to be a major in the U. S. Army and he behaves as if he's still giving orders to the troops. He insists that I say "Sir" when I speak to him. Strangely enough, after office hours he wants me to have a drink with him and he becomes overly friendly. I have no interest in getting involved with the man (he's married and 22 years my senior).

Do you have any advice on how I can keep my job and my self-respect? -- STAFF SERGEANT

Dear Sarge: Say "Yes, sir" from 9 until 5. After 5, say "No, sir."

Unsure of yourself on dates? What's right? What's wrong? Should you? Shouldn't you? Send for Ann Landers' booklet "Dating Do's and Don'ts," enclosing with your request 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

If You Were the Judge

Court Upholds Right of Man to Silence Friend

By Jack Strauss, LL. B.

Nicely Nelson found himself in more trouble than a fox surrounded by a pack of hound dogs. The F.B.I. was checking on him and before long he was afraid they might have him in check-mate because of his suspected unsavory activities.

To counter the investigation, Nicely warned his friend Horace that it would be a grave mistake if he didn't keep his mouth shut. More concerned with the state of his health than answering F.B.I. questions, Horace heeded the warning.

The result: Nicely was arrested and charged with violating a law that made it a crime to interfere with the "administration of justice."

"Nicely reduced Horace to a state of silence more effectively," the judge was told, "then a pack of sleeping pills."

"I wasn't interfering with the administration of justice," Nicely protested in his own defense. "All I did was to suggest that Horace not talk to the F.B.I. in any case, Besides, the F.B.I. doesn't administer justice. If anything, they dispense with it."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you convict Nicely Nelson of interfering with the administration of justice?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that Nicely hadn't interfered with the "administration of justice" since the F.B.I. is an investigating rather than a judicial arm of the government and does not administer justice.

The company expects to have between 400 and 500 people employed within two years after the building is completed.

DAEOC Center Will Be Operated At Hayti

HAYTI —The Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation center will be located in Hayti. Mrs. Margie Reddick of Portageville will head the Hayti program.

According to Mrs. Reddick, it will be several weeks before all the office material and work on the building will be finished. The building is located next to the Ark-Mo Power office on the south side of the square here in Hayti. This building is the location of the old City Drug Store.

Classes will be taught in the building, and those who did not receive a high school diploma may sign up. Mrs. Riddick said that anyone who wanted to sign up for General Education courses or Adult Basic Education should come by the office as soon as possible and sign up.

Those students who graduate will be given their high school diploma, and this diploma will enable them to go to the college of their choice. In other words, colleges will accept this certificate just as they would any high school diploma.

This new training center is only one branch of DAEOC and will be known as the AOC (Area Opportunity Center.)

These adult classes will start as soon as possible. Many more teachers and personnel will have to be hired for the department first. Mrs. Reddick says that they need as many as 20 students or more.

Assault Charge Dismissed, New One Lodged

POPLAR BLUFF - A charge of felonious assault was dismissed against one defendant and lodged against another Monday at Greenville in connection with a fish seining incident last month at the Wappapello Spillway.

The charge was dismissed against Vernon Dean Bounds, 25, of Buchanan, Mich., and a similar charge was filed against David Gene Cary, 27, St. Louis.

Bounds, Cary, and Cary's father and brother, John Cary, 50, and James Victor Cary, 24, were surprised by Conservation Agents Ranney McDonough and Kenneth Pate as they allegedly were seining fish immediately below the spillway gates. A scuffle follwed and one of the suspects allegedly tried to drown Agent McDonough in the river.

Bounds was charged originally, but requested a "lie detector" test and was cleared. The agents said it was an apparent case of mistaken identity in the dark, and Cary was charged with the felony yesterday by Wayne County Prosecuting Attorney Maurice B. Graham.

Bounds pleaded guilty to four misdemeanor charges in the same case yesterday. They were: $50 fine and $11 costs for resisting an officer; $10 fine and $11 costs for fishing in a restricted zone; $10 fine and $22.70 costs for fishing without a license; and $25 fine and $11 costs for fishing by an illegal method.

David Gene Cary pleaded not guilty to the same four misdemeanor charges and remained under $1,000 bond on the charge of resisting an officer. He also was placed under $1,000 bond in the new felony charge of assault.

A preliminary hearing for Cary on the felony charge was set for Aug. 26 before Judge Elmo Barrow in Wayne County Magistrate Court, where the proceedings are taking place in the seinging incident.

John Cary and James Cary previously were assessed a total of $254.70 in fines and costs on total of six charges in the same case.

DAEOC Center Will Be Operated At Hayti

HAYTI —The Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation center will be located in Hayti. Mrs. Margie Reddick of Portageville will head the Hayti program.

According to Mrs. Reddick, it will be several weeks before all the office material and work on the building will be finished. The building is located next to the Ark-Mo Power office on the south side of the square here in Hayti. This building is the location of the old City Drug Store.

Classes will be taught in the building, and those who did not receive a high school diploma may sign up. Mrs. Riddick said that anyone who wanted to sign up for General Education courses or Adult Basic Education should come by the office as soon as possible and sign up.

Those students who graduate will be given their high school diploma, and this diploma will enable them to go to the college of their choice. In other words, colleges will accept this certificate just as they would any high school diploma.

This new training center is only one branch of DAEOC and will be known as the AOC (Area Opportunity Center.)

These adult classes will start as soon as possible. Many more teachers and personnel will have to be hired for the department first. Mrs. Reddick says that they need as many as 20 students or more.

Assault Charge Dismissed, New One Lodged

POPLAR BLUFF - A charge of felonious assault was dismissed against one defendant and lodged against another Monday at Greenville in connection with a fish seining incident last month at the Wappapello Spillway.

The charge was dismissed against Vernon Dean Bounds, 25, of Buchanan, Mich., and a similar charge was filed against David Gene Cary, 27, St. Louis.

Bounds, Cary, and Cary's father and brother, John Cary, 50, and James Victor Cary, 24, were surprised by Conservation Agents Ranney McDonough and Kenneth Pate as they allegedly were seining fish immediately below the spillway gates. A scuffle follwed and one of the suspects allegedly tried to drown Agent McDonough in the river.

Bounds was charged originally, but requested a "lie detector" test and was cleared. The agents said it was an apparent case of mistaken identity in the dark, and Cary was charged with the felony yesterday by Wayne County Prosecuting Attorney Maurice B. Graham.

Bounds pleaded guilty to four misdemeanor charges in the same case yesterday. They were: $50 fine and $11 costs for resisting an officer; $10 fine and $11 costs for fishing in a restricted zone; $10 fine and $22.70 costs for fishing without a license; and $25 fine and $11 costs for fishing by an illegal method.

David Gene Cary pleaded not guilty to the same four misdemeanor charges and remained under $1,000 bond on the charge of res' ..ng an officer. He also was placed under $1,000 bond in the new felony charge of assault.

A preliminary hearing for Cary on the felony charge was set for Aug. 26 before Judge Elmo Barrow in Wayne County Magistrate Court, where the proceedings are taking place in the seinging incident.

John Cary and James Cary previously were assessed a total of $254.70 in fines and costs on total of six charges in the same case.
